FOR NATIONAL SECURITY—

The Coast and Geodetic Survey

BY REAR ADM. R. F. A. STUDDS
Director, U. S. C. & G. S.

THE Coast and Geodetic Survey is one of the oldest scientific and technical bureaus of the United States. The Coast Survey had its beginning in 1807 when President Thomas Jefferson obtained authority from the Congress for a trigonometrical survey of the coast and harbors of the United States. Due to the necessity of obtaining instruments and other equipment required for the work and intervention of the War of 1812, field work did not get underway until 1816. Since that time the functions of the Survey have been carried on without interruption except for the period 1818-32. The demands upon the Survey have grown with the national progress of the United States whose shoreline is now over 100,000 miles in length—more than four times the distance around the world.

Activities of the Coast and Geodetic Survey in the fields of engineering, science and higher mathematics provide facts needed in the planning and execution of many of the activities of the Nation. Through its field operations the Survey gathers certain raw materials in the form of engineering and scientific data which are converted into products essential to water and air navigation, mapping the country, the development of our natural resources, and for National Defense. Field surveying parties make observations and measurements, obtain depth soundings and conduct aerial surveys which are forwarded to the Washington office where they are checked, reviewed and compiled into final products suitable for public use.

One of the principal products of the Coast and Geodetic Survey is the nautical chart which is essential to marine navigation. Coast Pilots, tide tables, current tables and tidal current charts are published as supplements to the nautical charts. Aeronautical charts of domestic areas are produced in large quantities for use in civil aviation and to meet expanding military requirements. These and other important products of the Coast and Geodetic Survey are essential to commerce and industry and are indispensable to the national defense of the country.

The execution of geodetic control surveys to provide control for maps, charts, intermediate and local surveys, and various engineering projects, both public and

Regular Army Promotions

The President sent to the Senate this week the nomination for permanent promotion to lieutenant colonel, major and captain of all the remaining names on the previously published recommended list.

Since the Army has not yet effected the promotions of those previously nominated, the likelihood is that all of the officers will be promoted at the same time.

As a result of this week's action the last of the 535 selections for permanent lieutenant colonel has been nominated. The last selection was that of Claude P. Joyce, jr.

Similarly, the last of 909 officers selected for permanent major has been nominated. He is Clyde M. Dillender, jr. Also, the last of the 576 officers selected for permanent captain has been nominated. He is Reed A. Thursby.

The President also sent to the Senate the nomination of Russell McNellis to be a permanent lieutenant colonel in the Veterinary Corps; Egbert V. Bunker and John W. Northing, jr., to be permanent Medical Service Corps captains and Irwin C. Bailey, jr., Elmer C. Harre, Denis G. Moore and Urban J. Wurm to be permanent majors in the Chaplain Corps.

AF Rotation to Start

The Air Force is slated to commence its Far East Air Forces rotation program on 1 May.

It is anticipated that July 1950 eligibles will return to the ZI during May; August 1950 eligibles will come back during August, etc.

Marine Corps Promotion Boards Announced

The Marine Corps yesterday, 13 April, announced selection boards to name Reserve officers for promotion to captain, major, lieutenant colonel and colonel and reported approval by the Secretary of the Navy for promotion of second lieutenants to first lieutenant upon satisfactory completion of two years service, as determined by commanding officers.

Now in session is a board considering a total of 6000 eligible first lieutenants for promotion to the rank of captain—with 4595 promotions to be made. Included in the consideration are officers on active and inactive duty.

Under consideration are officers whose date of rank as a second lieutenant was 25 Oct. 1944 or earlier.

On 17 April two boards will meet, one to name officers for promotion to lieutenant colonel and the other to select nominees for promotion to colonel. A total of 719 majors will be eligible and 437 can be selected. For promotion to colonel, 67 are eligible and 35 may be promoted.

On 24 April, another board will meet to choose officers for promotion to captain. No data as to the number eligible and the number to be promoted was made available this week.

On 20 May, a board will meet to consider for promotion second lieutenants and warrant officers on active duty.

Col. John S. Oldfield is president of the board considering first lieutenants for advancement to captain. Other members are Lieutenant Colonels Thomas P. For-

Policy on Manpower Set; UMT Deferred

The Department of Defense, following months of study, this week laid down a new policy, announced by Secretary of Defense General George C. Marshall, which goes into effect on 1 May, to insure that the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps each will obtain equitable shares of the new men on the basis of mental and physical qualifications.

Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna M. Rosenberg, who is in charge of manpower problems and who worked out the new system with the Services, described the plan as an important achievement of Unification.

But on Capitol Hill, the Department of Defense sustained a serious reverse in the field of personnel planning for immediate and long-range security needs as the House balked at voting the implementation of Universal Military Training.

The Senate has approved U.M.T. and a compromise may be worked out. Secretary of Defense Marshall said this week, however, that he was fearful the House action might result in an "emasculated" U.M.T. program.

The Department of Defense has contended that approval by Congress of U.M.T. would permit the Armed Forces to reduce the size of the standing military force, which would mean shorter terms of Service and saving of great sums of money to the Government.

Faced with stiff opposition to U.M.T., the House Armed Services Committee came up with a compromise proposal which, while setting up machinery for U.M.T., delays the initiation until passage of another law.

A commission would be established, consisting of three civilians and two military men, to study and recommend details of a training program. The commission would have six months in which to complete its work.

Whatever the outcome, it now appears, unless the House action is reversed, that the Department of Defense must delay its plans for integrating U.M.T. into the present Selective Service program.

Meantime, in explaining the new Department plan for distribution of manpower, Secretary Marshall stated: "Under the conditions of modern war, men of outstanding qualifications are required in all branches of the military service. To concentrate the qualities of leadership or technical pre-eminence in one or more of the branches of the service is detrimental to our total strength in terms of efficiency."

"This plan should not only serve to adjust present imbalances among the military departments, but should lead to an important advance towards the more effective utilization of manpower throughout the military establishment."

"The plan preserves the right of voluntary enlistment. At the same time it as-

Washington, D. C. Daily News—"By firing General MacArthur, Mr. President, have you come any closer to winning or ending the war in Korea? That, eventually, is the test you must meet."

St. Louis Post Dispatch—"This is conduct which General MacArthur would not tolerate in a subordinate of his own. President Truman cannot afford to tolerate it in his subordinate, General MacArthur."

Louisville Courier-Journal—"He might set his case before the United Nations General Assembly, whose troops he commands. From the debate which surely would follow might emerge the clear policy so sorely needed."

Philadelphia Inquirer—"If there is an issue of impropriety in General MacArthur's statements in these matters, there is a greater one in the failure of our Government, our Allies and the United Nations to clear them up and a still greater one in their failure to give our forces in Korea and their commanders all the backing they need."

Washington, D. C. Evening Star—"The dismissal of General MacArthur effectively asserts the authority of Mr. Truman as President and Commander in Chief. And when the matter is viewed only in this narrow focus, it does not appear that the President had any real alternative."

Moline (Ill.) Daily Dispatch—"It must rankle him—as it does a good many other Americans—that we continue to preserve the illusion of being engaged in 'police action' to keep peace in Korea."

Boston Herald—"Either General MacArthur must be made to stick to his military business or be replaced. Liking politics so much, he should make an excellent United States senator."

Muncie (Ind.) Star—"The President should either order MacArthur to attack with every weapon America has or he should call him home and give up the Far East to Stalin."

Dallas Morning News—"No soldier in his right mind regards as militarily sound the conditions under which MacArthur is fighting in Korea by reason of the restrictions imposed upon him by his own government."

Milwaukee Journal—"If he uses both hands (that is, bombs Manchuria or other parts of China) he may bring new forces into the struggle. They may be forces that we cannot match at this time."

Sioux City (Iowa) Journal—"General MacArthur wants to fight the North Koreans and the red Chinese without being restricted. But he is restricted by the Pentagon building, the State Department and the White House."

New York Herald Tribune—"It is normal and allowable for a theater commander to think that his own front is the most important in the world, but only when he is restrained within some consistent concept of over-all strategy."

Birmingham News—"Obviously close coordination between a military commander and the political authorities behind him is highly desirable."

Portland (Maine) Press Herald—"He urges guns in place of guess-work; and his judgment comes out of an experience beside which that of the men of words is nothing. Give him all the tools and let him make an end of this blood-drabbed job."

Arkansas Gazette—"This is a fine, resounding, black-and-white maxim which unquestionably has a great appeal—at least until its implications, which, as usual, the general did not state, are considered."

New York Times—"Even his warmest admirers must regret that General MacArthur continues to issue public pronouncements on pre-eminently political issues which not only violate military regulations but also arouse public resentment in countries whose confidence, solidarity and mutual support are essential for the achievement of our aims in Korea and in the world at large."

Kalamazoo (Mich.) Gazette—"Let us hope that on the military situation, he has made or will make himself fully understood in Washington. And let us hope, too, that Washington will act in time."

Denver Post—"He should realize that no matter how just his complaint, when a man in his position makes it, he puts his own nation in a very bad light in the eyes of the Allies we are trying so desperately to hold together."

Daily Oklahoman—"General MacArthur is in the position he occupied last winter. Again he is waiting for the blow to fall, and still he is waiting for authority to bomb the communist nesting places."

Hartford (Conn.) Times—"The scorn that General MacArthur holds for diplomats and words is utterly misplaced. Words and diplomacy will settle it all in the end."

San Francisco Chronicle—"We suggest that the time is at hand for the United States delegation in the United Nations—with the unequivocal backing of the administration—to devote its full energies toward producing a resolution . . . that will either end the fighting or give MacArthur and his forces an objective and clear reason for the continued sacrifices."

Rocky Mountain (Colo.) News—"While General MacArthur's hands are tied, American casualties totaled 6,000 or more each month—without a definite objective."

Washington, D. C., Post—"Any reassertion of the President's authority as commander in chief and initiator of the country's foreign policy would win him, we feel sure, the support of the American people. That's what they are crying out for—leadership."

Miami (Fla.) Herald—"General MacArthur should be brought home for a report to Congress and through it to the people."

Savannah (Ga.) Morning News—"Moral and legal factors, it would appear, are entirely on the side of General MacArthur in this difference of opinion."

THE WAR IN KOREA

IN the biggest air battle of the Korean war and the greatest jet combat in history, more than 100 Russian-built MIG-15 jet fighters from Manchurian bases attacked 32 American B-29 medium bombers, escorted by 100 American F-84 and F-86 jet planes near Sinuiju, on the northwestern border of North Korea, on Thursday, 12 April.

In the resultant series of encounters eight enemy aircraft were destroyed, seven probably destroyed, and eleven damaged. None of the American fighters were damaged, but two B-29s were shot down and others damaged.

This sky battle climaxed a week of heavy enemy air activity, indicating a marked increase in Red air strength, probably due to the arrival of a large number of new planes from Russia. This reinforcement may be for the purpose of providing air cover for the expected new spring offensive by the enemy.

On the ground in Korea this week slow, but steady progress was made by Allied troops against increased enemy resistance. After fighting stubbornly to hold defensive positions on the central front two Red divisions late this week unexpectedly broke contact and withdrew to the north.

The South Korean Capital Division in a rapid advance, almost without opposition, entered Kansong, on the east coast, 22 miles north of the 38th parallel.

Advances along the entire front, from coast to coast, this week placed United Nations troops a few miles north of the controversial 38th parallel on every sector of the battle line in Korea, except on the extreme west, where some enemy troops are still in South Korea.

The principal fighting this week has been in the central sector where Allied troops are meeting stubborn resistance in the vicinity of Hwachong and Chorwon, where there has been a heavy enemy buildup in the last few weeks.

In an attempt to delay the advance of United Nations troops the Reds opened the floodgates of the huge Hwachong reservoir, the third largest in Korea. Apparently it was the expectation of the enemy that the resultant flood would fill the gorges, wash out the roads, and greatly impede the Allied forward movement. However, the manually operated floodgates were opened successively, instead of simultaneously, and the surge of water was relatively inconsequential. The maneuver failed to halt or delay the Allied advance.

Allied troops have reached the southern tip of the huge reservoir and a patrol of rangers on reconnaissance crossed the lake in boats and returned safely, though under heavy enemy fire. The city of Chorwon, on the west central front, a key point of the Communist defenses, was practically wiped out this week by Allied planes. This supply, transportation and communications center is 17 miles north of the 38th parallel, and has served as an assembly point for reinforcements arriving in the area.

Reds Reinforced

Despite heavy air attacks on Communist-held roads and other lines of communications the Reds have succeeded in heavily reinforcing their troops in Korea. During the past ten days 18 new Chinese Red divisions have been identified in Korea. These are all in rear areas and have not yet been committed to battle.

If these new divisions are at full authorized strength it would mean that about 180,000 troops have recently arrived from Manchuria. However, this does not necessarily mean a net increase in Communist strength of that many, since several battered divisions, which lost heavily in the recent Allied offensive, have probably been removed.

Several weeks ago it was estimated that there were 63 Chinese and North Korean divisions in Korea, with an aggregate strength of 600,000. Since that time the Reds have suffered heavy losses, so that reinforcements and replacements do not all represent net gains. Nevertheless, it is believed that there are now about 700,000 enemy troops in Korea, an increase of 100,000 in the last few weeks. Whether or not Red troops have been recently moved from other parts of China to Manchuria, to replace those now in Korea, has not been determined.

The possibility remains that the Chinese Reds may be regrouping large forces for a new major offensive, while maintaining a defense in depth some miles north of the 38th parallel. Such an offensive might be mounted next month, with the beginning of the rainy season, which is expected to hamper air operations, and make it difficult to move Allied heavy equipment through the mud of the Korean dirt roads. The lightly equipped Chinese troops, moving mostly on foot, with hand-carried supplies, would not be so severely handicapped.

With the change in the United Nations high command, with Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway replacing General Douglas MacArthur as Commander-in-Chief, there has been some speculation that the prospects for a Korean peace are now more favorable. There appears to be no indication of any tangible support for this point of view, with no evidence that the Chinese Reds have any intention of giving up the struggle unless their unacceptable peace terms are met.

Gen. Ridgway's Views

On a recent visit to the front General Ridgway indicated that he saw nothing in the situation that would warrant any prediction of an early military end to the conflict. He said the struggle might be resolved by a political decision, but he knew of none in prospect.

Enemy air activity has greatly increased during the past two weeks, tending to confirm reports of a substantial buildup in Red air strength, due to the arrival of hundreds of new jet planes from Russia. One report, the authenticity of which is seriously questioned, is that the Reds now have 3,000 planes in Manchuria. Observers feel that the number is more likely to be between 600 and 800.

As in the past the Communist pilots keep their planes close to the border, to enable them to flee to safety in Manchuria, if hard pressed. This makes it difficult for Allied pilots to press home their attacks, since they are forbidden to fly over Manchuria. Nevertheless, in

THE EUROPEAN COMMAND

AS expected and all but officially announced weeks ago, the Fourth U. S. Infantry Division, now at Ft. Benning, Ga., this week was ordered to Europe. Firm action was delayed until Congressional approval was assured. First of the four divisions whose early addition to General Eisenhower's American contingent was promised by President Truman, it is expected to sail in early May. It will be followed in mid-summer by the Second Armored Division, and that in turn by two National Guard Divisions, presumably the Forty-third (New England) and the Twenty-eighth (Pennsylvania), which were called to federal service last October, and thus have had the advantage of attaining full strength and four months of field training.

The selection of the National Guard divisions is almost obligatory, precisely as was the recent selection of the Fortieth (California) and the Forty-fifth (Oklahoma) for occupation and training duty in Japan, to which post they now are on the way. That is, the Regular divisions on station in the United States now are extremely few, and if overseas duty called for troops immediately they had to be from the National Guard.

U. S. Troops

The American divisions already in General Eisenhower's command are, of course, the First Infantry Division, and the constabulary force in Germany which, not yet designated as a division, has been receiving a great deal of intensive field training as regimental combat teams. It accordingly is spoken of as the equivalent of a division, which it is in a large sense, so that the American contingent which will be under General Eisenhower by the end of 1951 will reach six divisions.

With customary briskness and a desire to prove his post as Supreme Commander already operational (he took over formally only last week), General Eisenhower set out this week for inspection of the American, British, and French troops now formally under his command. His first halt, last Tuesday, was at Gutersloh, in the British area, where (in the course of such a downpour as many of us remember in Germany at this season of years fortunately long past) he watched the British Eleventh Armored division in battle maneuvers. This division is the largest of the new Allied reinforcements to reach Germany this year. It is made up for the most part of youths who have been in training for only a few months, but who on this occasion won their new Supreme Commander's commendation for their understanding of their jobs and the briskness of their participation in the exercise.

The Gutersloh visit was followed by a trip to Wiesbaden, which still is the headquarters of Lt. Gen. Lauris Norstad, commander of the U. S. Air Forces in Europe and commander-designate of Allied Air Forces in the Central Sector; because of the latter role, General Norstad will shortly move on to new headquarters appropriately close to SHAPE's coming installation west of Paris.

Mediterranean Area

The delicate political matters which so far have delayed decision on the proposed Mediterranean Area, as described in these columns a week ago, are such as to delay also an anticipated announcement on the Atlantic Area Command, already tendered to Admiral William M. Fechteler, USN, but not yet formally confirmed or accepted. It was fully expected at the week-end, but was postponed "owing to the need of further discussion at London," which is the base for numerous NATO activities. Following that negative decision, there was no indication of when the announcement will be made or even whether it will certainly take its expected form. The recent unfortunately timed protest by leaders of the British parliamentary minority has clearly complicated an all-important NATO arrangement which had been expected to go through as smoothly as did the organization of SHAPE.

A contributing complication has come from the Big Four discussions also current in London. The Russian delegate, Mr. Gromyko, obviously has as his first objective the hampering of NATO's development; the regrettable fact is that to an appreciable degree he is attaining it. That he is making small headway as affects SHAPE itself is due in large measure to the celerity and determination with which General Eisenhower, his American Chief of Staff, Lt. Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, and their competent inter-Allied staff members have accepted their responsibilities and gone to work.

Asst. Sec'y Leva Resigns

Assistant Secretary of Defense Marx Leva, a former Naval officer, resigned this week and the President named as his successor Dan Kramer Edwards, mayor of Durham, N. C.

Mr. Leva, who has been with the Department of Defense since its organization and who is known to have wanted for a long time to return to his private law practice, is probably the outstanding authority in the nation on unification law. He has been in charge of legislative matters for the Department, in which he has served under all three Secretaries, the late James Forrestal, Louis Johnson and General George C. Marshall.

Mr. Edwards reached the rank of lieutenant colonel during World War II, during which time he served under Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, USA-Ret., in the Pacific. He is the recipient of the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star, Bronze Star with Cluster, Air Medal, Combat Infantryman's Badge, and Purple Heart.

Inter-Service Photo Contest

Special Services representatives of the Armed Forces met last week to complete details on the Inter-Service Photography Contest.

The grand prize is provided by the ARMY NAVY AIR FORCE JOURNAL.

All entries are to be forwarded to Washington, D. C., by 21 June, and judging will be held the next day. Each service will enter 120 photographs in the contest.

Gen. Ridgway's Record

Lt. Gen. Matthew Bunker Ridgway, USA, who during recent years frequently has filled two assignments simultaneously, this week was given four commands:

Supreme Commander, Allied Powers
Commander in Chief, United Nations Command
Commander in Chief, Far East
Commanding General, U. S. Army, Far East

It is believed certain that General Ridgway's name will be sent to the Senate in the immediate future for promotion to four-star rank. That he would be given the rank of full general for his service as Eighth Army Commander has been freely predicted for weeks. His new assignment obviously calls for higher rank.

When ordered to the Far East, General Ridgway, who was 56 years old on 3 March, was serving as Deputy Chief of Staff for Administration, U. S. Army, with additional duty as Chairman, Inter-American Defense Board.

Since General Ridgway now holds a U.N. assignment, it is of interest to note that on 3 Jan. 1946 he was named to represent General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower on the Military Staff Committee of the U.N., first in London, then in New York City. And on 1 March 1946, in addition to this duty, he was designated Senior U. S. Delegate to the Inter-American Defense Board and assumed chairmanship of the board. General Ridgway was made Senior U. S. Army Member of the U. N. Military Staff Committee on 27 Oct. 1947.

The following is a summary of his service from his graduation at West Point in 1917 to the end of World War II.

June 1917—Assigned to 3d Inf., Eagle Pass, Tex., where he had successive duty as company commander, regimental adjutant and commander of the regimental headquarters company.

Sept. 1918—Assigned as instructor at U.S.M.A. becoming Executive for Athletics in September 1921 and Graduate Manager of Athletics at West Point the following August.

June 1924—Joined Company Officers Course at the Infantry School, Ft. Benning, Ga., graduating in May 1925, following which assumed command of a company of the 15th Infantry at Tientsin, China. In the summer of 1926, took command of Co. E, 9th Inf., Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., later becoming regimental adjutant of the 9th Inf.

December 1927—On duty with the American Electoral Commission in Nicaragua.

February 1929—Stationed in Washington, D. C., on the Commission of Inquiry and Conciliation pertaining to the Bolivian-Paraguayan boundary dispute.

September 1929—Began advanced course at the Infantry School and graduated in June 1930, after which returned to Nicaragua for more duty with the American Electoral Commission.

December 1930—Duty with the 33d Inf. at Ft. Clayton, C. Z. and in the spring of 1932 assigned as liaison officer to the Insular Government in the Philippines, in which capacity he served as technical adviser to Governor-General Theodore Roosevelt, Jr.

August 1933—Entered the Command and General Staff School, Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., and graduated June 1935.

August 1935—Assigned A/C/S, G-3, Sixth Corps Area, Chicago; and from March to August 1936 held same post with Second Army, becoming D/C/S, Second Army, August 1936.

September 1936—Ordered to Army War College as student and graduated June 1937, following which went to the Presidio of San Francisco as A/C/S, G-3, Fourth Army.

May 1939—Accompanied then Brig. Gen. George C. Marshall, at that time Chief of Staff-Designate, to Brazil on a special mission.

September 1939—Assigned to the War Dept. General Staff, War Plans Division.

March 1942—Made assistant commander, 82d Infantry Division, of which he became CG on 26 June 1942. Remained in command when, in August 1948, the division was renamed the 82d Airborne.

April 1943—took the division to North Africa and was responsible for planning and executing the first major airborne assault in the history of the Army—the attack on Sicily. Led his division in rapid conquest of the western half of that island.

September 1943—Led the 82d Airborne Division until November 1943 in the Italian Campaign.

June 1944—Parachuted with the leading elements of the division into Normandy.

August 1944—Selected to command the XVIII Airborne Corps and directed operations in the Ardennes Campaign, Crossing of the Rhine, Ruhr Pocket, Crossing of the Elbe and the advance to function with the Russian forces on the Baltic on 2 May 1945.

August 1945—Returned with his corps to the U. S. for redeployment to the Pacific and flew to the Philippines that month to prepare for participation in the invasion of Japan.

October 1945—Assigned to command the Mediterranean Theater of Operations and named Deputy Supreme Allied Commander, Mediterranean.

Regular Army Nominations

The President on 11 April nominated the following named persons for appointment in the Regular Army of the United States in the grades and corps specified.

Gratuitous Insurance

Senate and House conferees on H. R. 1 reached an agreement 12 April on provisions of the bill establishing a $10,000 death gratuity for service men. The conferees agreed to the bill with the following provisions:

1. The conference agreement provides for the gratuitous indemnity approach embodied in the House-approved and Senate Committee reported versions of H. R. 1 and also provides that any veteran may obtain insurance on a new mortality table premium basis within 120 days after his discharge or separation from the service.

2. The bill also provides that men who have either World War I or World War II policies and who return to the service may have the option of surrendering their policies for cash and reinstating them after discharge or having the premiums waived during the time of their service.

Hearings on Marine Corps

Hearings were scheduled to start yesterday before the Senate Committee on Armed Services on legislation to provide that the Marine Corps "shall include four full-strength combat divisions, four full-strength air wings, and such other land combat, aviation, and other services as may be organic therein."

Gen. Ward Tells History Progress

The Army's history of World War II is two-thirds complete, Maj. Gen. Orlando Ward, Chief of Military History, told the Army's Historical Advisory Committee this week at its annual meeting in Washington.

Maj. Gen. Ward

The group, which consists of leading American historians and educators, gives advice and guidance to professional historians preparing the 90-odd volume series entitled "The U. S. Army in World War II."

"Although only six volumes have been published to date," General Ward told the committee, "research and writing on all volumes is approximately two-thirds complete, and a considerable number of volumes are expected to be published within the next two years."

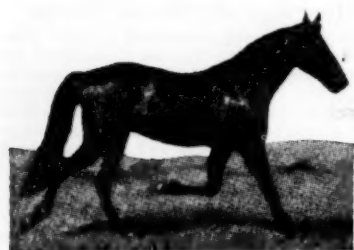

General Ward added that this is the first time the U. S. Army has completed a major portion of a war history in such a short time after the war's end, pointing out that the World War I documentary history was not published until 1949, and that the preceding wars in which the United States was involved went unrecorded as far as a narrative, official history is concerned.

General Ward also announced that a one-volume pictorial history of the Korean conflict, now being compiled under the title "Korea—1950," is scheduled for publication in the summer. Col. S. L. A. Marshall, who recently returned from Korea where he served as an operations analyst, attended the meeting as a member of the advisory committee.

JAG Boards Convene

Selection board action to name lieutenant colonels of the Judge Advocate General's Corps for advancement to the permanent rank of colonel and to recommend other JAGC officers for temporary promotion to lieutenant colonel, major and captain is slated to begin at the Pentagon on or about 16 April.

President of the board is Brig. Gen. Robert W. Brown. Members are Brig. Gen. C. B. Mickelwait, Col. John J. Honan, Col. Edgar P. Snodgrass and Col. William P. Connally. Lt. Col. C. W. Nelson, AGC, is recorder without vote.

For selection of officers for temporary advancement, Col. Douglas C. France will replace Colonel Honan and Col. Donald M. Keith will replace Colonel Snodgrass. Otherwise, the board will remain the same as to membership and presidency.

The zone of consideration for permanent colonel extends through No. 78 on the JAG promotion list, Charles L. Decker.

For the temporary promotions, the zones of consideration were reported in the 31 March issue of THE JOURNAL as follows: Lt. Col.—31 Dec. 1946; Major—31 Dec. 1947; Captain—30 June 1949.

In each case, Reserve or National Guard officers currently serving on active duty in the grades of major, captain or first lieutenant who, respectively, hold valid commissions in the ORC or National Guard as lieutenant colonel, major or captain will be eligible for consideration.

Navy Sets Up New Schools

The Navy has announced the establishment of three new Class "A" schools, one at Great Lakes, Ill., for boilermen, and two at San Diego, Calif., for pipefitters and molders.

The Pipefitters' School will be established at San Diego on 14 May, and will graduate approximately 15 trainees every two weeks. The Molders' School will be opened at the Naval Station there on 7 May, and will graduate approximately 20 trainees every ten weeks.

The school for boilermen will be established at the Great Lakes Naval Training Center on 21 May, and will graduate about 20 trainees every two weeks.

ELECTRIC BOAT takes to the air

Long recognized as America's oldest and largest builder of submarines, Electric Boat Company has added another activity to its efforts in behalf of hemispheric defense.

EBCo's great airplane manufacturing subsidiary, Canadair Limited, at Montreal, Canada, is now engaged in producing military aircraft on a major scale.

Shown here is the F-86 "Sabre," being built by Canadair for the Royal Canadian Air Force under license from North American Aviation, Inc. This super-streamlined jet fighter holds the official world's speed record of 670 m.p.h. with full combat load.

At Canadair as at EBCo's other plants, a continuing program of product development and improvement is under way to make us ever stronger in the protection of our liberties.

U. S. NAVY & MARINE CORPS

Korean Ribbon

The Secretary of the Navy has authorized the Commander of Naval Forces in the Far East to determine the eligibility of units outside the Korean area to wear the Korean Service Medal. They will be determined, the announcement said, "on the basis of direct support of the military effort in Korea."

At the same time, the Navy clarified the terms under which Naval, Marine Corps and Coast Guard personnel will be entitled to wear the medal.

Personnel, to be eligible for the Medal, must have been on duty in the Korean area (which conforms with boundaries set for income tax exemption purposes) and other such areas that the Chief of Naval Operations considers as having directly supported the military effort in Korea. Such duty must have been performed between 27 June 1950 and a terminal date to be fixed by the Secretary of Defense.

The established boundaries are "Korea, including the waters adjacent thereto within the following limits: from a point at latitude 39 degrees 30 minutes north, longitude 22 degrees 45 minutes east, southward to latitude 33 degrees north, longitude 122 degrees 45 minutes east; thence eastward to latitude 33 degrees north, 37 degrees 05 minutes north; longitude 133 degrees east; thence northward to latitude 40 degrees 40 minutes north, longitude 133 degrees east; thence northward to a point on the east coast of Korea at the junction of Korea with the USSR."

Service in a permanent duty status for a period of one or more days in the Korean area will make personnel eligible for the award under the following conditions:

Sea duty—Attached to and regularly serving on board a vessel of the Navy or Coast Guard or upon another vessel to which regularly assigned for duty in the designated area or as a member of an organization being transported for duty aboard such vessels. The CNO will designate the vessels and specific dates the personnel aboard those vessels are considered eligible for this award.

Shore duty—Attached to and regularly serving on shore with an organization that is participating in combat action or in direct support of combat missions. The CNO will designate those units considered eligible for this award.

For personnel on temporary additional duty, service of 30 consecutive or 60 non-consecutive days in the prescribed area is required.

The Navy said that "In all cases where in a vessel, aircraft, or other unit engages in combat with, attacks, or is attacked by enemy forces, all USN personnel serving in the vessel, aircraft or other unit will immediately become eligible for the Korean Service Medal without reference to a time limit."

No "observer, visitor, courier or escort" will become eligible for the Medal unless he or the means of conveyance in which he is traveling is attacked by or engages in combat with the enemy. Passage as a patient in a Hospital Ship, however, will be considered as attached to the ship and not in a passenger status.

The precedence of the Medal will be immediately following the China Service Medal awarded for service subsequent to 2 Sept. 1945.

Postgrad Law Course

Naval aviators will no longer be assigned to the Postgraduate Law Course unless they request such training "at the expense of permanent revocation of their orders to duty involving flying," it was announced this week.

Gen. Cates Charts Course

In a document entitled "Topics of Concern to the Marine Corps," General Clifton B. Cates, commandant of the Marine Corps, has laid down a comprehensive directive for the guidance of his general officers in this critical period.

The letter, issued in lieu of the Commandant's annual conference of general officers, discusses the Corps' attitude toward such vital subjects as the reputation of the Corps, interservice relations, economy, leadership, training, discipline, appearance, food, and mail. Considerable comment is also given to the Reserves and how they should be used and treated.

So comprehensive is the statement that Representative Clark W. Thompson (D-Tex), who became a Marine in 1917, has inserted it in the Congressional Record with the admonition that "it is an exceptional document and should be read by everyone in any way connected with the Armed Services."

The text of General Cates' letter follows:

Text of Letter

"1. Since it is obviously impracticable to hold the Commandant's annual conference of general officers under the current circumstances, the medium of this letter is employed to acquaint all Marine Corps general officers and other commanding officers with the Commandant's views on a number of matters of concern to the entire Marine Corps.

"2. This, unquestionably, is one of the most critical periods in the history of the Marine Corps. Following demobilization and further progressive administrative reduction from 1945 to June 1950, we have again embarked on a program of expansion in a new period of national emergency. The First Marine Division and the First Marine Aircraft Wing have already demonstrated in Korea that Marines of today can equal the outstanding performance of their predecessors. The actions of the Marine Corps in the months and years ahead may very possibly have some measure of influence on the destiny of the country. These actions, beyond question, will determine the future of the Marine Corps.

"3. The reputation of the Corps—the manner in which it is looked upon by the American people whom it serves—is a priceless asset. It was established by faithful and unswerving service rendered with a high order of professional competency at all times. A great part of it was due to success of Marines in battle. A significant fraction comes, however, from the fact that habitually Marines discharge any job assigned in a satisfactory manner. The public has come to associate competence and efficiency with the Marine Corps and it is a responsibility of every Marine to uphold this reputation. The Marine Corps will never become so large or impersonal as to be indifferent to the activities of the individual Marine. The success of the Corps in the past has been the result of the collective efforts of many individuals. Success in the future will be attained by the same type of effort.

"4. Attitude: In any period of expansion, it is difficult to retain a personal, individual approach to the men. To do so requires extraordinary effort on the part of every officer and noncommissioned officer. It is expected that whatever effort is necessary will be made; whatever measures are required will be taken. Should the time ever arrive when the individual Marine becomes—or is permitted to believe that he has become—only a number of an MOS, then the Marine Corps will, in fact, have commenced to decline. In the 6 months from July 1950 to January 1951, the Marine Corps doubled its strength. With expansion of that order, it is far from simple to instill in every Marine the proper sense of responsibility and pride in the Corps. Nevertheless, it is a job that must be done.

"5. Interservice relations: As a military service of this Nation, the Marine Corps has certain clearly defined functions. The Marine Corps' justification is dependent entirely on the manner in which these functions are carried out. An implied responsibility is that of complete and wholehearted cooperation with the other services. The American people definitely, and quite properly, expect this to be done. Neither that nor any other worthwhile purpose is served by interservice controversy. Accordingly, it is expected that every possible measure will be taken to work in harmony with the other services. The emergency facing this country will require work and sacrifice on the part of every American. The immediate task of the Marine Corps in this emergency is to develop and maintain combat forces in being. This requires the complete and undivided effort of every Marine. Perfecting and maintaining the proficiency of the Marine Corps is our full-time job. Relations with other services can and will be conducted on a basis of mutual cooperation and without sacrifice or compromise of Marine Corps principles. Marine participation in interservice controversy in any form acts to the detriment of the Marine Corps and to the entire national defense structure, and is a disservice to both.

"6. Economy: The extensive program of expansion on which the services have embarked is by no means to be interpreted as indicating that previous measures of economy can be relaxed. While it is true that there will be more money, more men, and more materiel in the coming months, it is also true that the need to do the most with the least is far greater than it has ever been before. In order to realize the greatest possible return, it will be necessary to adhere to the most rigid measures of economy. Assignment of personnel to noncombatant units will continue to be on a basis of strict austerity. Every allocation of funds, personnel, and materiel to supporting functions must be carefully and continually screened to insure that it is made on the basis of minimum needs. The past efforts of the Marine Corps to make the most of its available means have been uniformly successful. The need for these efforts is even more pressing today than it was in the past. The immediate goal is to develop, in the shortest possible time, formations within the Fleet Marine Forces with the personnel, materiel, and training required to permit them to carry out Marine Corps combat missions. The urgency is such as to prohibit diversion of any of our limited resources to less essential tasks. Every non-combat activity must carry its full share of the burden required to place our maximum effort in the Fleet Marine Forces. Adherence to this policy is a command responsibility.

"7. Success in combat can be attributed in great measure to leadership, training, and discipline. In its efforts to produce and maintain combat forces in being, the Marine Corps must direct its attention to these important factors.

"(a) Leadership: The development of troop leaders is a continuing process. In a period of expansion such as this, there must be continual screening for men who can be trained to make good leaders. They must be trained with meticulous care. There is no better training device than that of constant demonstration of good leadership practices. There are indications that at least some junior officers and noncommissioned officers are either unaware of or completely indifferent to many of their fundamental responsibilities.

"One of the most significant of these is the binding obligation to employ the authority of their rank solely for its intended purpose. There have been instances in which this authority has been so perverted as to result in the physical mistreatment of individual marines. Abuse of authority can undermine and eventually destroy a military organization. In such circumstances, the fault is not alone with the officer or noncommissioned officer concerned. It is clearly indicative of failure on the part of more senior officers, particularly in the matters of leadership and supervision.

"(b) Training: Training is, of course, preparation for battle. Thus, it is the most important function of troops not engaged in combat. It is important that the men understand that the training is designed not only to improve their individual performance in combat but also to enable them to function effectively as members of teams in combat wherein malperformance by one individual may endanger all others. While training in the Fleet Marine Forces obviously provides the most direct benefits, nevertheless training conducted at posts and stations is vitally important. It must be properly planned, energetically pursued, and carefully supervised. It must not be considered merely as a perfunctory duty. Every marine is available for assignment to the Fleet Marine Forces and he must be trained continually to permit him to carry out such an assignment. General Order No. 10 (shortly to be superseded by General Order No. 83) outlines a sound course of training to accomplish this purpose.

"(c) Discipline: The validity of the Marine Corps standards of discipline has been repeatedly demonstrated. These standards are not to be relaxed or qualified during this period of expansion.

"(d) Appearance: In the circumstances such as those currently existing, there is often a tendency to relax normal standards in the personal appearance of individual marines. This same tendency is noted in the appearance of equipment (particularly motor transport) and in the general maintenance of buildings, grounds, and facilities. This deterioration of standards must be avoided. The remedy lies in additional effort on the part of every officer and noncommissioned officer.

"8. Recruiting: The Marine Corps expansion to date has been accomplished by using Reserves and voluntary enlistments. The great majority of the Reserves have now been mobilized. It is to the best interest of the Marine Corps to continue to make maximum use of voluntary enlistments as long as it is possible to do so. Every Marine Corps activity can assist the recruiting program by encouraging voluntary enlistment by every practicable means.

"9. Inquiries addressed to the Commandant from members of Congress and from parents and interested friends of Marines have, of course, increased tremendously since July. The general pattern established by these inquiries is, in a measure, indicative of the manner in which various command responsibilities are being discharged. Some of the most often mentioned topics are listed below in order that all commanders may insure that the conditions referred to do not exist in their commands.

"(a) Food: The fact that at least some complaints about food are received under almost all circumstances does not justify complacency. In spite of the high cost of food there is no reason why entirely adequate messes cannot be maintained. The problem of units in the combat area is, of course, a special circumstance. In other situations, an adequate mess can be provided if the commander gives to it a sufficient amount of his personal attention and supervision. The manner in which food is prepared and served usually determines whether the mess is good or bad. This is the area which requires the greatest attention and supervision and which shows the greatest results of such effort. It is worth noting that at least one complaint was received which stated that one mess was preparing far too much food with a resulting extravagant waste.

"(b) Mail: In the question of mail, the problems faced by units in the combat area are of a special nature and not within the purview of these remarks. The morale value of mail is readily recognized. For all units within the continental United States there is no apparent reason why mail should not be distributed rapidly and regularly though reports to the contrary have been received.

"(c) Reserves:

"(1) There have been many reports that some reserves are dissatisfied and disgruntled. This seems to be due to a lack of understanding of why they were mobilized and due also to the confusion incident to the large-scale mobilization last fall. There are repeated reports that the reservists, even now, are not receiving proper training. There are other reports which clearly indicate that the reservists do not understand their rights and privileges regarding insurance, family allotments, and other administrative procedures.

"(2) While it was reasonable to expect that at least some of these problems would exist during the first few weeks of mobilization, their existence at this date would appear to be inexcusable. Measures should be taken immediately to clarify problems of this kind. Commands which have already carried out orientation courses should institute an immediate recheck to insure that there is no misunderstanding. It must be recognized that these men left their civilian pursuits, their families, and their homes on very short notice. If they are to serve properly as marines, it is necessary that they have an understanding of why they were called to active duty. The importance of their work as marines must be made clear.

"(3) The authority under which the reserves were mobilized provided that they would serve for a period of 21 months. Under the terms of the Naval Reserve Act and the National Security Act, the Secretary of the Navy has the authority to extend this period of duty for the duration of the emergency. If the international situation should worsen, this authority would probably be invoked. It most certainly would be in the event of a declaration of war. At the present time, Marine Corps personnel plans are predicated on the assumption that all reservists who so desire, will be released at the end of their 21-months tour. As indicated above, this is, of course, subject to change. As soon as it is practicable to establish a definite program for the return of reservists to inactive duty, all commands will be informed.

"(4) It would seem quite obvious that a reservist could scarcely be expected to believe that he is providing an important service to his country on active duty unless he is actually receiving thorough training, and unless, after he is trained, he receives an assignment commensurate with his rank.

"(5) It is a basic responsibility of commanders to insure that every marine is fully conversant with his rights, privileges, and responsibilities relating to pay, insurance, and family allotments.

Reduce Commercial Planes

The number of U. S. commercial aircraft participating in the Pacific Airlift has been reduced to 60 with the release of six commercial aircraft during March, the Military Air Transport Service reports.

The six planes released, all DC-4 type, were: three under contract with Northwest Airlines and one each from Pan-American, United and American.

Release of the six commercial planes does not indicate a major reduction of airlift in the Pacific, Maj. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, MATS Commander, stated.

"Greater utilization of the MATS fleet plus an increase in the numbers of trips allocated to the United Nations and commercial carriers remaining will maintain the planned flow of vital cargo to our forces in the Far East," he said.

This is the second time since July 1950, that commercial airliners have been released from the Pacific Airlift.

The fleet of 66 contract carriers which had operated in the Airlift since July were reduced to 37 by November 1950, due to decreased requirements for airlifted materials at that time. However, in December, the number of airliners under contract was again raised to 66 following the entry of the Chinese Communists into the Korean conflict.

In nine months of its operation, the Pacific Airlift has flown more than 22,000 tons, including 73,000 passengers, 11,000 tons of cargo and 2,000 tons of mail across the Pacific. Peak month in MATS Pacific operations was September, 1950, when more than 13,000 passengers and 1,784 tons of cargo and mail were airlifted to the Far East.

On return flights to the United States, more than 21,000 battle casualties and patients have been evacuated from Japan by MATS air evacuation aircraft.

The biggest month to date for air evacuation was December, when 6,300 patients and war wounded were returned to the U. S. from Japan in the flying hospital wards of MATS.

Temp. Officer Promotions

Air Force officials this week were reported to be studying data supplied from major commands on the proposed 1951 temporary promotion program.

As yet, no decision has been made concerning when the temporary promotions will be ordered, nor is there indication as to how many officers may receive temporary advancements during the remainder of this year.

It is known that the Air Force requested major commands to submit pertinent data on this matter and it is possible that an announcement may be forthcoming in the near future.

Secy. Names Advisory Group

A comprehensive study and evaluation of personnel utilization and training throughout the Air Force is being undertaken by an advisory committee of educators and businessmen which met this week at the Pentagon.

The committee was appointed by Secretary of the Air Force Thomas K. Finletter. Members are Charles Cole, President of Amherst College, Mass.; Maj. Gen. Ralph Cousins, USAF-Ret., Vice President of Founders Fire and Marine Insurance Company, Los Angeles, Calif.; Frank Shallenberger, Professor of Industrial Management, Stanford University, Calif.; and Frederick Atkinson, Vice President of R. H. Macy and Company, New York City.

General Cousins a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy in 1915, served in the Armed Forces in both World Wars. He was commanding general of the Army Air Forces Western Flying Training Command at Moffett Field, Calif., when he retired from the service.

Mr. Atkinson, a native of Aspinwall, Pennsylvania, was chief of the Personnel Division of the Air Transport Command in World War II.

The Committee will select its own approach and determine the details which it will investigate. Secretary Finletter has, however, outlined general areas of review, included among which are:

An appraisal of procedures for determining Air Force personnel requirements in terms of numbers and skills; method of recruiting, classifying and assigning personnel; methods of determining and controlling input, output, and utilization of personnel with critical skills that cannot be developed through normal Air Force training programs.

In reviewing and appraising Air Force personnel utilization and training procedures, the committee has been asked by Secretary Finletter to give additional attention to AF coordination and cooperation with the other services to determine if joint programs, standards, practices and procedures can be better utilized.

air fights during the week numerous enemy MIG-15 jet fighters were destroyed or damaged by American aircraft, which escaped almost unscathed.

On the ground this week on the extreme west of the front South Korean patrols crossed the Imjin River and entered Korangpo-ri. Other units engaged small enemy rear guard forces southwest of the town.

Light enemy contact was reported by United Nations forces advancing southwest of Yonchon. Moderate to heavy resistance was encountered by hard-hitting Turkish troops southeast of that town.

Counter-Attack

A small enemy force launched a determined counter-attack at night north of Yongpyong, forcing Allied troops to make a short withdrawal. Another night attack by enemy troops of undetermined size northwest of Yongpyong was repulsed after a sharp fight, with the Reds fleeing to the north.

A patrol northwest of Yongong-ni successfully engaged a small enemy force. South Korean troops farther east repulsed an enemy attack and advanced against moderate resistance. Still farther east United Nations forces moved slowly forward against stubborn opposition. On the east coast advancing South Korean troops, covered by gunfire from Allied warships, reported no significant enemy activity.

United Nations naval forces operating off the east coast continued the long bombardment of the ports of Wonsan and Songjin, disrupting transportation and supply facilities. Cruisers and destroyers shelled roads and rail junctions to prevent the enemy from repairing the battered coastal transportation system.

A raiding force of British Royal Marine Commandos, operating under air and naval gunfire cover, went ashore south of Songjin and demolished a large section of the main line coastal railway. Surprise was complete, with only token resistance encountered, and there were no casualties among the shore party. The raiders were ashore seven hours and the demolition was highly successful.

Records continued to be set in the Allied naval bombardments of Songjin and Wonsan. Songjin has been pounded by naval guns every day for more than a month, while the siege of Wonsan by Allied warships is nearly two months old, with daily firing by blockading vessels.

At Songjin U. S. Destroyers Walker, Hubbard and Massey pounded shore installations, while the USS Thompson, Hoquiam, Walke and Hank patrolled the area in search of Blockade-running Communist junks.

The U. S. Heavy Cruiser St. Paul, the Light Cruiser Manchester, and the Destroyers Zellars and Brown maintained interdiction fire on road and rail arteries, and on enemy vehicles attempting to move to the front. Farther south near the east coast battle line the U. S. Destroyer Forrest Royal stood by to give call fire support to the fast-moving ground troops of the South Korean Capital Division, which reached Kansong this week.

British Seafires and Fireflies from the Light Cruiser Theseus and American Corsairs from the USS Bataan flew interdiction missions in Northeastern Korea against key bridges, road junctions, and highways to harass enemy movements of supplies and reinforcements on the important communications network. Persistent and ingenious efforts of the enemy to repair previous damage to transportation facilities were discouraged by the accurate bombing of Allied flyers.

In addition to the great air battle of 12 April Far East Air Force flyers fought several brief and successful engagements with enemy planes during the week. In the course of the fighting several enemy jet planes were shot down and others were damaged. Our aircraft received relatively minor damage.

Increasing numbers of enemy jet fighters were sighted, and there was increased aggressiveness shown by Red pilots, who nevertheless kept close to the Manchurian border and fled to safety when the going got rough. In one instance the pilot of a damaged enemy plane parachuted to the ground, and his plane fell in the sea.

Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, commanding the Far East Air Force, announced that up to 6 April, which was prior to this week's heavy air activity, United Nations flyers had destroyed or damaged 275 Red planes since the war started last June. Of these 157 were hit on the ground on Red airfields. In air combat 43 Russian-type planes, 31 of them MIG jets, were definitely destroyed, and 81 others were damaged. No announcement of the losses of United Nations aircraft was made, other than the statement that they were very light.

Recently repaired airfields in North Korea were heavily attacked by Allied aircraft this week, and runways were cratered. While none of these fields was operational, there were indications that the Reds were trying to make them available for future use.

Heavily vehicular movements on North Korean roads were reported by air observers. During the past two weeks nearly 15,000 enemy vehicles of all types were sighted, of which more than half were headed south toward the battle area. This traffic was repeatedly attacked by Allied planes and hundreds of trucks were destroyed or damaged.

American B-29 medium bombers made several attacks on Yalu River bridges, scoring a number of direct hits on highway and rail spans. The extent of the damage done was obscured by heavy smoke. The enemy air attack of last Thursday on B-29 bombers was an unsuccessful attempt to break up bombing attacks on the river bridges, on the direct route from Manchuria to the front.

The airfields, marshalling yards and supply centers at Pyongyang, the North Korean capital, were also hit by Okinawa-based B-29 medium bombers with good results. Other bombers hit the Sariwon airfield, scoring a good coverage of the flight strips.

Highways and rail lines on the main route from Pyongyang to the front, through Sariwon, were cut by air attacks. Hundreds of casualties were inflicted on the enemy, and numerous buildings, vehicles, locomotives, railway cars, supply and fuel dumps, and gun emplacements were destroyed or damaged. Allied aircraft pulverized the enemy concentration center of Chorwon, a few miles from the front line.

High praise for Turkish troops fighting in Korea was given this week by Maj. Orville Munsan, USA, who has been returned to the United States after being wounded in action, while serving with the Turkish brigade. Maj. Munsan was with an American training mission in Turkey when he was selected as one of five American officers to accompany the Turkish infantry brigade to Korea. Maj. Munsan said the Turks in Korea fought with great courage until their ammunition gave out and then continued the battle with bayonets. He spoke warmly of their skill and bravery and said they were among the best soldiers now fighting in Korea.

"We must be prepared for any eventuality, and it is imperative that it be done at once. We must meet the present emergency and at the same time we must establish a long-range preparedness and training program."—REPRESENTATIVE CARL A. VINSON (D-GA).

General MacArthur. After more than half a century of military service, General of the Army Douglas MacArthur has been relieved of his command. President Truman is not one to countenance opposition placidly and it can not be denied that he has been provoked by his Far Eastern commander. General MacArthur, on his part, has not been one to acquiesce quietly in policies he believed prejudicial to his country. There are ample evidences of this in General MacArthur's long public service. In the '30's when the administration's early economy program sought to reduce the strength of our pitifully small Army, General MacArthur, while Chief of Staff, defied both President Roosevelt and Budget Director Lewis Douglas and worked successfully for the retention of what he considered the irreducible minimum of personnel strength. President Roosevelt doubtless was irked, but the result was to the benefit of the United States. When General MacArthur subsequently was assigned to the Philippine Government as a military adviser, he welcomed the duty as an opportunity to build a strong bastion for our civilization in the Far East. Two years later, with his task just getting underway, President Roosevelt ordered him to take command of the Second Corps Area, then considered the senior Army troop command. Again, the General thwarted his superiors by applying for retirement. Because he had completed 32 years of active service since his graduation from the U. S. Military Academy, he had a legal right to retirement, so orders to that effect were issued and his recall nullified. He continued with his task in the Philippines in the service of the Philippine Commonwealth. Events justified his efforts to build up the defenses of those islands and to give the new nation the organization with which to fight. With the outbreak of war in the Far East and his recall to active duty in command of the Allied forces there, he never ceased to attack aggressively the enemy, whose tactics, characteristics, and capacities he knew so well, nor did he cease to urge upon Washington, to their visible irritation, the necessity of strengthening his small forces. Again, so great was his progress that his theater, though it had been given consideration secondary to Europe, combined with Admiral Nimitz's central Pacific forces and drove the Japanese to defeat only a few months after the fall of Germany and before the planned diversion of strength from Europe had reached the Far East.

In the General's continued insistence upon what he considers the best policy, he is doing what he thinks best for his country. He has a superb knowledge of people and politics and it can not be said that he did not foresee the outcome of his course of action. He may well have pursued it to produce a result he felt preferable to acquiescence.

The President said that "full and vigorous debate on matters of national policy is a vital element in the constitutional system of our free democracy." By his action he has boldly opened the way for just such a vigorous discussion. He has laid his case before the people in his statements and his radio address (reported in full text in this issue of THE JOURNAL). General MacArthur will return to the States and plead the wisdom of his course. There can be no question as to the sincerity of either. President Truman is perfectly honest in expressing his admiration and respect for General MacArthur's outstanding services to the Nation. He would like to have MacArthur continue but he is more determined that his policies be accepted and respected. General MacArthur is equally adamant in his determination that if there must be war its conduct should be governed by military concepts. In the final analysis the people, through their elected representatives and by the weight of their expression of public opinion, will decide the ultimate course.

It would appear that the President could have achieved his objective by measures less extreme than relieving General MacArthur of his commands. More precise and complete directives might have been issued to him months ago. A firmer attitude could have been taken earlier and efforts made to reach a clear personal understanding. Even at this late date the President might, for example, have ordered his field commander to Washington for a conference, which would have had the effect of demonstrating to the world the President's authority as Commander in Chief and

The War Service Score

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Just what function does the "War Service Score" perform? Your 31 March article quotes the Department of the Army as contending that it is not used in promotion selections and that it is of no importance in making assignments.

It's hard to believe that a board of officers spent months working up a combat rating on the record of every officer in World War II for no purpose at all. This device was conceived and developed in secrecy and, apparently, only partially smoked out by your insistence upon some sort of an explanation. I am, indeed, Suspicious.

A "Sound" Promotion System

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Why can't the Army develop a sound promotion system and then live with it? The previous policy of basing temporary promotions on permanent rank, despite some shortcomings, was a step in the right direction and an attempt to eliminate the injustices which resulted from the decentralized World War II promotion system. The new policy, based on date of temporary rank, endorses the "be in the right place at the right time" idea and will undermine every constructive accomplishment of the previous policy.

Why not continue with the previous criteria of temporary promotion based upon permanent rank and efficiency and modify it with a time in grade clause? This have emphasized his determination that his policies be pursued.

While the loss of MacArthur's active service is serious and can not be discounted, the nation is fortunate in the knowledge that there is no dearth of strong and able leadership in our Armed Forces. Through peace and war, at home and overseas, Generals Ridgway and Van Fleet have demonstrated their capacities for the new responsibilities which have come to them.

There is and will be no relaxation of our pressure upon the enemy in the field nor will any dissent weaken our forces. This may surprise and puzzle the peoples behind the Iron Curtain, but it is the way and the strength of American democracy.

Quarters Allowances

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The statement of the Personnel Policy Board, as published in THE JOURNAL 31 March, announces that, where married quarters are not available, the male officer is permitted "single quarters" only and if the parties were not on the same station, and without dependents, then no quarters whatsoever. It is agreed that the old policy of allowing both the male and female to draw single quarters was not equitable, but why penalize them for being both in the service?

Is there any difference between the case where both are commissioned and working on the same station and that where the husband is commissioned and the wife is working as a civil service employee on the same station without other dependents? In the latter case the male officer will draw the so-called married officers' quarters allowance even though his civil service employed wife draws the same amount as the female commissioned officer.

Similar situations are legion, but the unjust result (though it is only a loss of $15.00 per month in our case) is real. My wife is a 2d Lt., ANC, and I am a Capt., USAF, and this new policy makes it just as desirable from a financial standpoint for her to leave the service and get a job as a civil service employee, nurse, in the same hospital, at the same station, which in fact is being done in many cases.

Captain, USAF.

NEWs of the removal of General of the Army Douglas MacArthur as Supreme Commander for the Allied Powers in Japan and as Commander-in-Chief of the United Nations Forces in Korea was received with approval at Lake Success and at European capitals, but with stunned amazement, bordering on consternation, in Japan.

European diplomats had long feared that General MacArthur was attempting to dictate American foreign policy, and were concerned lest his advocacy of extending the war to the territory of Red China might start a new world war, with disastrous results. They were also disturbed over increasing American military involvement in Asia, to the possible detriment of European defenses. Some interpreted the relief of General MacArthur as brightening the prospect of a negotiated peace in Korea.

On the other hand, downcast Japanese of all strata of society, who looked upon General MacArthur with mingled awe and admiration, were crushed with the conviction that they have lost their one protector against Communist aggression. Though he came as a conqueror, General MacArthur proved to be a warm friend of the Japanese people, whom they implicitly trusted. They enthusiastically accepted his great leadership in building a progressive democracy on the ruins of a feudal military autocracy.

► SECRETARY OF THE ARMY FRANK PACE'S arrival in the Far East just prior to the dismissal of General MacArthur was a coincidence as his trip had been planned for several weeks. He had conferred with General MacArthur in Tokyo and the general is reported to have asked him for more troops from the United States and other members of the United Nations, for the utilization of Chinese nationalists, and for a freer hand in the conduct of military operations. Secretary Pace was in Korea visiting the front lines with Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway when the news was received of the removal of the Supreme Commander, and the designation of General Ridgway to succeed him. Neither the Secretary nor General Ridgway would comment on this development.

It is reported that the British government has requested the United States to include the Communist government of China in consultations pertaining to the proposed Japanese peace treaty, and has also suggested that Formosa, the last stronghold of the Chinese nationalists, be turned over to the Reds. The United States is understood to have rejected both proposals.

In Washington there is growing concern over new reports of Russian troop concentrations in Siberia and the Kuriles. House Speaker Sam Rayburn this week amplified his previous statement of a buildup of Communist troops in Manchuria, not all of them Chinese. After another White House conference on 9 April the Speaker repeated his declaration that the country is "in terrible danger," and said the Russians are concentrating troops "here, there and everywhere." It has been reported, without confirmation, that Soviet military units, composed of former Japanese prisoners of war, have been sent to the southern half of Sakhalin Island, off the Siberian coast.

It was announced in London by Charles M. Spofford, American chairman of the Atlantic Pact Council of Deputies, that Atlantic Treaty nations are now spending $56 billion a year for defense, three times the rate prior to the Korean war. Mr. Spofford said there was "growing confidence that aggression can be deterred." He told a news conference that the coming year will see the transition from defense planning to performance.

► THE NEW BRITISH BUDGET of $11.7 billion, submitted to Parliament this week by Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Gaitskell, is the largest in British peacetime history. It contains $4.1 billion for defense, nearly double that of the current budget. This compares with $41.4 billion for defense in the United States in the 1951 fiscal year, and about $24 billion in Russia. The entire budget is regarded as extremely high, and will mean increased taxes and an intensification of the present austerity program. Mr. Gaitskell expects a deficit of $227 million at current tax rates.

Plans are reported under way for a joint committee of representatives of the United States, France and Great Britain to pass on an informal request of Yugoslavia for arms and other military equipment. It is understood that Marshal Tito has asked for artillery, tanks, small arms and communications equipment to modernize his army so as to cope with the growing threat of aggression by the Soviet Union and satellite border states.

► THE RUSSIAN PRESS has reported that Albania has protested against violation of its territory by Italy and Greece. It is charged that Greek soldiers fired at Albanian border guards, that a Greek plane dropped propaganda leaflets on Albania, and that a Greek ship entered Albanian territorial waters. Eight Italian planes are reported to have flown across the border. At the same time the Yugoslav government is accused of frontier provocations. These protests follow reports that a serious anti-Red revolt had been ruthlessly suppressed by the Communist government of Albania.

The so-called preliminary meeting in Paris of the deputy foreign ministers of the United States, Great Britain, France and Russia, to decide on a program for a subsequent meeting of their chiefs, has droned wearily into the sixth week, with small prospect of reaching an agreement. Apparently there is little chance of the Russians accepting the proposals of the western powers, or if the latter acceding to Soviet demands. However, neither side wishes to take the initiative in ending the fruitless conference.

A Stockholm paper this week reported that Soviet troops garrisoned in Eastern Hungary had mutinied and that the revolt was suppressed by other troops rushed from Russia. The unrest is said to have spread to the Kossuth Academy for Hungarian officers, where the cadets were shot down by Hungarian Communist police. The report has not been confirmed from other sources.

The Inter-American conference of foreign ministers held in Washington last week closed last Saturday with the unanimous adoption of a series of agreements for strengthening mutual defense against aggression. Each of the republics agreed to strengthen its armed forces and to keep units available for hemispheric defense and for service with United Nations forces. It was also agreed that laws against subversion be tightened to forestall internal aggression. Collaboration in economic mobilization was provided for to protect the living standards of the Americas during the emergency, and to cushion subsequent conversion.

► MSC Officer To England—Lt. Col. Raymond J. Karpen, MSC, Chief of the Sanitary Engineering Section, Preventive Medicine Division, will leave on 18 April to represent the Office of the Surgeon General of the Army at the Royal Institute Health Congress to be held at Southport, England.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

► Mrs. Rosenberg's First Task—The concern of Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall regarding the disproportionate number of men with relatively high intelligence and physical qualifications who were going into the Navy and Air Force was reflected this week at a press conference held in connection with announcement of the new plan for qualitative distribution of military manpower.

Secretary Marshall revealed that the first task assigned to Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna M. Rosenberg was to work out a policy to provide for equitable distribution of manpower among the Armed Forces. Since Mrs. Rosenberg was sworn into office on 15 Nov. 1950, it is apparent that this problem was a very ticklish one, although the Assistant Secretary said this week that all of the Services co-operated fully in working out the details.

However, as has been pointed out in THE JOURNAL during recent months, Army officials long have been disturbed because of the failure of the Department of Defense to make Selective Service applicable to all of the Armed Forces. It is known that Air Force and Navy officials have been insistent in their position that they need men of highest possible qualifications and the inference has been that the Army could better utilize men of lower mental and physical caliber.

► General MacArthur's Background in Asiatic Affairs—General of the Army Douglas MacArthur's deep knowledge of the Far East and its peoples springs from life long study and association.

While young Douglas was still in the U. S. Military Academy, his father, Lt. General Arthur S. MacArthur was Military Governor of the Philippines. He, too, became greatly admired by the Filipinos. When he was ordered home, the General was called to testify before the Senate Committee on Philippines. Just as his son has since stressed the importance of Formosa to our defense so General MacArthur at that time stressed the strategic importance of the Philippines, declaring that their possession by the United States was essential even if we must fight for them.

While General MacArthur was military governor of the Philippines, President Theodore Roosevelt sent William Howard Taft to the islands as a special representative. Mr. Taft recommended that a civilian government be established there, a recommendation with which General MacArthur disagreed. The General returned to the States for duty in 1902 but in 1904 was returned to the Philippines as commander of the Division of the Pacific, serving there until 1907 at which time he was relieved of his command and ordered to proceed to Milwaukee, Wisc., to perform "such duties as may be assigned to him by the War Department," which at that time was under the Secretaryship of Mr. Taft. However, until his retirement 2 June 1909 he wasn't given a command. He died 5 Sept. 1912 at the age of 67.

Douglas MacArthur's first assignment out of West Point was in the Philippines where he served about a year as a second lieutenant of the Corps of Engineers in 1903 and 1904.

In 1905 and 1906 he went to Japan with his father who had been designated as U. S. Military observer in the Russo-Japanese war. Subsequently, he was given a confidential mission which took him to many countries throughout Asia.

He was again in the Philippines from 1922 to 1925 commanding the District of Manila, the 23d Infantry Brigade and the Philippine Division. After duty in the States, he returned to the Philippines in 1928 as Commanding General of the Philippine Department.

Following his service as Chief of Staff of the Army, he went to the Philippines as military adviser. When he was ordered home in 1937 after two years service there, he invoked his right to retirement and stayed on in the service of the Philippine Commonwealth, which made him a Field Marshal of the Philippine Army. On 26 July 1941 he was recalled to active duty as commander of U. S. Forces in the Far East.

Since going to the Philippines in 1935, he has returned to the United States only once, in 1937, when he was married to Miss Jean Faircloth, who returned to the Far East with him and has remained with him since.

► Tanker Gives "Left Rudder" Order—Company C, 70th Medium Tank Battalion, 1st Cavalry Division, probably is the saltiest Army unit in Korea, for its commanding officer is a Naval Academy graduate. 1st Lt. Thomas A. Murphy was graduated from Annapolis in 1944, resigned his Navy commission in 1947 and in early 1950 accepted a Regular Army commission in the Armor branch.

The former naval communications officer uses such terms as "left rudder," "right rudder" and "steady as you go" to direct the control of his 40-ton tank. Instead of being a rear deck, the tank's hindmost part is called "the stern." The forward is the "bow." Right is "starboard" and left is "port" and anything in between is "quarterdeck." Crew members said Lieutenant Murphy's vocabulary is not confusing.

► Honor CME Recipient—Fort Benning, Ga., officials honored M/Sgt. Travis E. Watkins when the Close Combat range was redesignated Watkins Range. Sergeant Watkins was killed in action in Korea on 3 Sept. 1950 and was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor posthumously for gallantry in action.

► Answers "Prussian Staff" Charges—The allegation that the United States now has a "Hitlerian general staff in operation," made by Representative Thomas H. Werdel (R-Calif.), (reported in last week's JOURNAL) was answered this week by Representative Samuel W. Yorty (D-Calif.). He inserted into the Congressional Record a lengthy statement supporting National Security Training (UMT), discussion of which prompted Representative Werdel's intemperate blast.

"I had plenty to say about the generals during my military service," Congressman Yorty declared, "but the fact remains that our generals have always guided our Armies to ultimate victory and I take it we are all agreed that is an important measure of their ability."

Representative Yorty charged that his colleague made "ill-considered charges" and he accused Representative Werdel of "unwittingly giving voice and official recognition to the insidious propaganda of the Communist Party."

In his remarks, Congressman Yorty refuted the charge that generals were attempting through U.M.T. to usurp power. He stated:

"It probably is not easy for our military men, who bear full responsibility for our protection, to watch our political antics which some continue to indulge in right up to the brink of disaster. They would like to get on with the job, and some of them might harbor an impulse to overstep their proper bounds in order to acquire power and speed and direct our decisions, but I do not believe that there is any concerted Pentagon plot to make this country a military dictatorship, and certainly if there were, national security training would be a mistaken way to accomplish it. Civilians who have served in the Armed Forces, as have many of the Members of this House, and who have been subjected to military discipline, can certainly be depended upon to resist military control even more than those who have never personally experienced it. National security training will, in my judgment, cause our young men to be more attached, and not less attached, to the principles of our Constitution."

General Milburn Acting CG—For the second time, Lt. Gen. Frank W. Milburn this week became Acting Commanding General of the Eighth Army. Following the death of General Walton H. Walker, General Milburn, then a major general, commanded the Eighth Army until the arrival in Korea of Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway. This week, upon leaving Korea for Japan, General Ridgway named General Milburn to command the Eighth Army pending the arrival of Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet in Korea.

General Milburn is the senior U. S. officer now in Korea. He was made a lieutenant general, following Senate confirmation, in Army Special Orders No. 31, dated 13 Feb. 1951, with date of rank from 8 Feb. 1951. Lt. Gen. John B. Coulter, who is deputy commander of the Eighth Army, holds three-star rank from 11 Feb. 1951, and Lt. Gen. Edward M. Almond, X Corps commander, ranks from 12 Feb. The commanding general of the third corps organization in Korea—General Milburn commands the I Corps—is Maj. Gen. William Hoge, who commands the IX Corps.

The President's 6 Dec. Instructions—The disclosure this week that the President on 6 Dec. 1950 ordered all military commanders to clear policy statements with Washington recalls an article published in the 9 Dec. issue of THE JOURNAL. That article noted at its outset that "cables to and from General of the Army Douglas MacArthur in recent days have been an important source of news and observations regarding the all-out Chinese intervention in the Korean fighting. Normally," it was stated, "such information is dispatched largely by correspondents with the combat forces in Korea or at headquarters of the Supreme Commander in Tokyo. However, stories concerning General MacArthur's reactions," the article continued, "have broken during the past week or so from such points as Washington, New York and Frankfurt, Germany."

It was noted that General MacArthur, in response to questions cabled him, had given a statement to President Hugh Baillie of the United Press, in which the Supreme Commander held that U. N. forces were fighting against "military odds without precedent in history." General MacArthur wired Mr. Baillie that there was no precedent in history for a situation "permitting offensive action without defensive retaliation."

Also reported were messages from General MacArthur to the magazine U. S. News and World Report and to Mr. Arthur Krock, Chief Washington Correspondent of the New York Times, both released on 1 Dec., the same date as the story by Mr. Baillie.

Submarine Progress—The Navy reviewed its present submarine expansion program this week on the 51st anniversary of underseas development. Among the vessels under construction are six fast attack submarines which the Navy says "will have greater speed than present models and will carry latest electronic devices." Also under way is an anti-submarine submarine construction program. The first of the new sub-killer subs was launched last month at Groton, Conn., and two more are being finished.

Nine additional submarines are being converted to the Guppy (greater underwater propulsion) type, as announced by the Navy last October, and the first of these is expected to be completed by mid-summer, with the remainder ready for use by the Fleet before the end of the year.

A target and experimental submarine is also being built by the Navy at the Portsmouth (N. H.) Naval Shipyard, and a 250-ton midget sub, to be used for training purposes, will be built by the Electric Boat Company at Groton, Conn.

The ship construction bill recently passed by Congress authorizes seven new fleet-type submarines of latest design, and, as a climax to its more than a half-century of submarine development, the Navy is now conducting experimental work which is expected to result in the first atomic-powered submarine.

Utilization of Retired Officers—A British Viewpoint—Although the British are ahead of this Nation in preparing military personnel for civilian employment following retirement through operation of the Army College, North, there is dissatisfaction in that country, as here, concerning maximum utilization of retired personnel in the current emergency. This is reflected in a letter to the editor of the London Times, published in the 4 April issue, wherein Brigadier W. A. Ebsworth declares:

"Men who become eligible for an old-age pension are now being encouraged to continue in their work as long as they can, on the ground that the country needs the services of every man who is able to work. If it is necessary to urge such men to work beyond the age of 65, why is so little done to make use of the services of officers who retire in their fifties?"

Brigadier Ebsworth expresses concern also about the large numbers of colonels, brigadiers and major generals who have been retired since 1945 at relatively young ages.

The Army College, North, in England was established especially to train military personnel, both enlisted and officer, for useful civilian employment following their retirement. The activities of this facility—not duplicated in the Armed Forces of the United States—were reported in detail in an article published in THE JOURNAL last year.

Not Much To Land On—After a busy search, Army officials at Ft. Bragg, N. C., have solved the problem of shoes for Pvt. Willie Basnight. A member of the 82d Airborne Division's 505th Airborne Infantry Regiment, he wears a size three shoe—possibly the smallest feet in the Army.

Airborne Family—From Ft. Campbell, Ky., this week came word that Capt. Jack D. Miley, son of Maj. Gen. William M. Miley, USA, was in a hospital at Taegu, Korea, late last month recovering from wounds received while fighting with the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, formerly a part of the 11th Airborne Division at Ft. Campbell. Captain Miley was commander of G Co., 2d Bn, when wounded. Reportedly, four G Co. commanders were wounded in one night's action. The announcement said that Captain Miley had received wounds in the shoulder and chest, but that these were not serious.

Captain Miley's brother, Capt. William M. Miley, jr., a former member of the 511th Airborne Infantry Regiment at Ft. Campbell, is now on duty in Japan. Their father, who commanded the 17th Airborne Division in Europe during World War II, and later the 11th Airborne Division in Japan and at Ft. Campbell, now commands the Airborne Center at Ft. Bragg, N. C.

Propose Mounted Service Museum—Officially, with the signature by the President on 23 June 1950 of the Army Organization Act, the Army lost its Cavalry. But if the U. S. Armor Association is successful, the Army horse will not be forgotten. In the March-April issue of Armor, Association publication, a proposal is discussed for the establishment of a Mounted Service Museum, advocated by Col. Herbert H. Frost, USA. Col. Jeffrey Galway, USA-Ret., says the plan should go further. There should be a museum, he says, expanded beyond purely military items to serve as a National Gallery of The Horse.

The Association has created a special committee to study the matter and lay the groundwork for a museum, to which Colonel Frost already has pledged his valuable personal collection of guns and saddles and an extensive library. In addition to Colonel Frost, others named to the study group include: Maj. Gen. Guy V. Henry, honorary president; Colonel Galway and Capt. William G. Bell, secretary. Communications should be addressed to the Secretary, U. S. Armor Association, 1719 K Street, N.W., Washington 6, D. C.

QMC Officer Changes—Col. Carroll B. Henderson upon completion of the Logistics Course at the Naval War College, Newport, R. I. in June 1951 will report to Personnel and Training Division, Office of The Quartermaster General. Maj. Henry W. Witcover presently attending the School of Law at the Stanford University, Palo Alto, Calif., will be transferred 1 July to Office Chief of Staff, Washington, D. C. for duty in the Judge Advocate General's Office.

$100,000 Retirement—Retired 31 March at Ft. Hood, Tex., after 30 years service, Chief Warrant Officer Merl J. Fauset, who is only 47 years of age, hopes to collect $100,000 in retirement pay. He was retired in the grade of lieutenant colonel. His home is at 126 Ostrom Drive, San Antonio, Tex.

Selected for Pharmaceutical Post—Comdr. W. Paul Briggs, MSC, USN, left the Navy on 1 April to become Director of the American Foundation for Pharmaceutical Education, with offices in New York City. During World War II, Commander Briggs set up the Navy's Night Vision Testing Program, was supervisor of WAVE procurement and WAVE training within the Hospital Corps and was the Navy's liaison officer in pharmaceutical matters. Released from active duty in 1945, he returned to George Washington University as Dean of the College of Pharmacy and simultaneously was Director of Pharmacy Division, Veterans Administration. In January 1948 he was commissioned a commander in the Regular Navy and subsequently served as head of the Pharmacy Section, Professional Division, Bureau of Medicine and Surgery and as the Navy member of the Armed Services' Medical Materiel and Specifications Committee.

Signal Officer To SHAPE—Maj. Gen. Francis H. Lanahan, USA, Commanding General of the Signal Corps Center at Ft. Monmouth, N. J., will report this month for assignment to Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers in Europe. His successor was not named.

During World War II, General Lanahan was Director of Planning in the Office of the Chief Signal Officer early in 1943 and later that year was assigned to the European Theater as Senior American Signal Officer with the Chiefs of Staff, Staff of the Allied Command. In February 1944, he was named Deputy Chief Signal Officer of SHAEF and in March 1945 became Chief SHAEF Signal Officer. Upon the dissolution of SHAEF in July 1945, General Lanahan was appointed Chief Signal Officer of the United States Forces in the European Theater, leaving that assignment in May, 1947, to assume command of Ft. Monmouth.

Uniform is Pawned, Court-Martial Results—In what was described as an action without precedent at Carswell AFB, Tex., home of the Eighth Air Force, an airman recently was court-martialed for pawning his uniforms. The airman was reduced to the grade of private, fined $30 and sentenced to 30 days at hard labor. Maximum sentence in such a case, it was reported, may be four months' confinement, forfeiture of two-thirds pay for four months and reduction to the rank of private.

Reservists in Korea—The Navy, through its Assistant Secretary for Air, John F. Floberg, revealed this week that 40 per cent of the First Marine Division in Korea is composed of Reservists called to duty since last June. Mr. Floberg also said that 30 per cent of the First Marine Air Wing and 25 per cent of the men in Navy ships and planes now fighting in the Far East are similarly manned.

Pigeon is Courier—In Korea, the 3d Division Light Air Section frequently has depended on "Pigeon service" for getting messages to their destination. This service is being performed by 1st Lt. Carl R. Pigeon, an L-5 pilot, who has flown more than 150 combat hours.

Signal Corps—Two officers recently were assigned to Military Training Branch, Personnel and Training Division, Office of the Chief Signal Officer. They are Lt. Col. Charles M. Woodman, recalled to active duty from Dallas, Tex., and Maj. Edward L. Nielsen, previously assigned to Army Communications Service Division. Major Nielsen was also formerly Chief of the Military Amateur Radio System (MARS), Army.

WAC Officer Decorated—Lt. Col. Florence M. Clark, WAC Staff Advisor in the Far East Command, has been awarded the Legion of Merit Medal—the first WAC so honored since outbreak of the Korean conflict. The award was presented by Maj. Gen. W. A. Beiderlinden, Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1, GHQ, FEC.

You Get Double Duty Service ... from this Portable Grandstand.

There's good reason to specify Wayne's Type "H" Steel, Portable Grandstand . . .

For you can use it either in—or out-of-doors!

Weighing only 696 lbs., a standard 4-row unit can be carried intact through the usual double doorway. And larger units, which are made in portable sections, can be easily moved to any location desired.

Versatile, durable, and absolutely safe—Wayne's Type "H" costs only a little more per seat than ordinary wooden bleachers. And the seating capacity of a Type "H" can be increased at any future date by adding to it either in length or number of rows.

Write for details. Request Bulletin 1-H.

First Electronic Targets

Fort Campbell, Ky., will be the first Army installation to discard manually operated range targets and install electronic targets.

The target is made of four materials, an outer layer of conductive rubber, a layer of self sealing insulating rubber, galvanized screen and masonite backing.

When a metal projectile hits the target it penetrates the outer layer of conductive rubber and completes the circuit to a galvanized screen. This causes a flashing light and beeping noise on the recording instrument at or behind the firing point, giving an immediate evaluation of the rifleman's hit.

The target will record hits ranging from .22 caliber bullets to the largest artillery shell used by artillery units, at the rate of 1200 hits a minute.

The old system used by military installations on firing ranges used two men in the target pit operating the target. The men pasted, marked and raised and lowered the target. Because the new target is operated electrically it will eliminate the need of personnel in the pits.

At an average machine gun transition range the use of this electronic equipment will save 128 man days of labor in one day by eliminating the need of men to mark, paste and pull targets, thus enabling these men to engage in more useful training. One Army test found that by installing $160,000 of this type target approximately $1,000,000 in man hour wages could be saved in one year at one installation.

USAFE Surgeon Selected

Lt. Col. Louis C. Kossuth, chief, preventive medicine branch of the USAFE air surgeon's office, has been named U. S. delegate to the special committee to consider the draft of international sanitary regulations prepared by the export committee on international epidemiology and quarantine.

The special committee meets in Geneva, Switzerland, on 9 April. Its final draft will be submitted to the Fourth World Health Assembly of the United Nations' World Health Organization for approval when it convenes in Geneva on 7 May.

sures that we will be strong on the ground, in the air and at sea, with no branch holding a monopoly on all the talent."

The plan provides that each service is to receive men in accordance with the normal distribution of mental groups within the national male population. Judgment as to a man's relative standing will be based on the standard measure of mental qualification used by the military departments.

Minimum physical standards for acceptance will be identical for all services. Men will be assigned according to physical capabilities in normal course without any special allocation procedure.

Out of every 100 men who take the Armed Forces Qualification Test and qualify for military service, eight normally fall in Group I, the highest mental group; thirty-two in Group II, thirty-nine in Group III and twenty-one in Group IV. Each service will take in men in accordance with these proportions so that there will be a balanced distribution of men in all mental groups among the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps.

The services will continue voluntary recruitment of men, but the total number of men taken in, whether through voluntary enlistment or induction, will conform to the percentages listed above. Should any service fail, in any two-month period, to obtain by voluntary enlistment the specified quotas for the period, shortages would be filled in a subsequent month from among Selective Service registrants.

The new plan will become effective for all services 1 May. The minimum standard for acceptance for all services will be that now used by the Army. Up to now, the Navy and Air Force in accepting applicants for enlistment, have required ten points more than the proposed minimum standard. This standard will be equivalent to the 70 AGCT score used during World War II.

Armed Forces Examining Stations to administer the program will begin functioning 1 July. These stations will conduct mental and physical examinations for all service entrants, whether by enlistment or induction. It is anticipated that greater efficiency of operation, some operating economies and more effective control of distribution will be achieved through these joint centers.

Officer candidates, aviation cadets and veterans will not be covered in the qualitative distribution program. When exceptional circumstances justify such action, an individual service may request of the Secretary of Defense specific exceptions to proportionate qualitative distribution.

Text of Memorandum

Following is the text of Secretary Marshall's memorandum on the distribution of military manpower.

1. The following policies are hereby promulgated to provide for the qualitative division of military manpower accessions among the Services on an equitable basis. These policies are applicable to the procurement of personnel through induction or by voluntary recruitment. They will be implemented 1 May 1951 by the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force.

2. Policies of a general nature

a. Each service may continue voluntary enlistment programs, subject to necessary limitations imposed by this and any other pertinent directives.

b. The same minimum physical standards for acceptance will obtain for each service. These acceptance standards will be identical for enlistment and induction of males except for officer candidates and aviation cadets.

c. Qualitative distribution of personnel enlisted and inducted under common physical standards will be accomplished by quota control of accessions to each of the services in each of the four major mental groupings.

3. Male accessions (with the exceptions cited below), whether obtained by induction or enlistment, will be charged against the qualitative and quantitative allocations of the respective services.

Exceptions

a. Officer candidates and aviation cadets.

b. Individuals exempt (as distinguished from deferred) from induction as set forth in Section 6 of the Selective Service Act of 1948 as amended or other applicable legislation.

4. a. These policies will be administered under procedures prescribed by the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense, Manpower and Personnel.

b. When special requirements support such action, a service may request of the Secretary of Defense specific exceptions to proportionate qualitative distribution.

5. Detailed policies are outlined in Inclosure 1.

Policies for Qualitative Distribution of Military Manpower Accessions Among the Services

1. In order to equalize the qualitative distribution of male personnel among the Armed Forces the following policies for distributing, processing and reporting personnel accessions, enlisted and inducted, on and after 1 May 1951 are established for the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force.

2. a. The basis for determining mental qualifications and standards of acceptance for enlistment will be the Armed Forces Qualification Test, expressed in terms of the Army-Air Force table of converted scores. Mental groups will be as follows:

Mental Groups	AFQT Percentile Score
I	93-100
II	65-92
III	31-64
IV	13-30
V	12-and below

The minimum score for acceptance will be AFQT converted score 13 (AGCT 70).

b. The minimum for physical acceptance will be that established in AR 40-115 "Physical Standards and Physical Profile for Enlistment and Induction," as amended.

c. Accessions to each service will be statistically controlled by each Service in accordance with percentage quotas for each mental group to be prescribed from time to time by the Secretary of Defense. These percentages will be adjusted to maintain an essential balance among the services in accordance with the intent of this directive. Effective 1 May 1951 the following percentage quotas for enlistment by mental groups are established:

Mental Groups	Percentage Quota
I	8.0
II	32.0
III	39.0
IV	21.0

(1) The services will accept for enlistment, within each mental group established above, and in order of application so far as vacancies in any group exist, the normal distribution of AFQT individual scores and will not attempt to select from any arbitrary range of scores within each group.

(2) A shortage of enlistments in any one mental group may be filled by a corresponding overage in lower categories. For example, a shortage of 5 per cent in group II may be filled by adding 5 per cent in group III; the 5 per cent overage in group III will be charged against the group II allocation. However, acquisition of personnel in a higher category in excess of the established percentages will not be permitted.

(3) Should any service fail in any two months to obtain by voluntary enlistment the specified number of accessions in any mental group, if not filled as in (2) above, such shortage will be filled in a subsequent month from among Selective Service registrants forwarded for induction. Thus, assuming a 10,000 objective for a given two months, recruiting effort should strive to produce the following: I—800, II—3200, III—3900, IV—2100

However, assuming only 1600 are procured in group IV, and all other groups are filled, the required 500 will be procured in a subsequent month from among Selective Service registrants forwarded for induction in mental group IV. A shortage in Groups I, II or III would be similarly filled by inductions in the same or lower groups.

(4) Enlistments in excess of the percentages prescribed above will not be contracted in any one month for application against the percentage quota for any future month. Accepted enlistees will be applied against the percentage quota for the month in which they are accepted for service, and such enlistees must actually enter the service within that month, except as may be otherwise specifically authorized.

(5) The designated supervisory agency will submit to the Department of Defense and to each Service a monthly report of enlistments and inductions by mental groups and by mental-physical categories in accordance with procedures to be specified, using the prescribed standard reporting forms.

3. Effective 1 July 1951, mental and physical examinations of all chargeable accessions will be conducted at the main recruiting and induction stations now operated jointly by the Army and Air Force or by the Navy or Marine Corps. An agreed number of these will, on that date, be redesignated Armed Forces Examining Stations. Operating personnel at these stations will be augmented by Navy or Marine Corps or Army and Air Force personnel as required and agreed among the Services. In the interim period, Navy and Marine Corps accessions may continue to be examined in accordance with standards listed in pars. 2 a and b at currently established Navy or Marine Corps examining stations.

private, is a basic responsibility of the Survey. Large-scale topographic and planimetric maps of areas along the coasts of the United States are produced as by-products of the compilation of nautical charts. Aerial photographs are taken to insure an adequate amount of reliable topographic detail on the nautical charts but other important uses are made of the basic surveys. Tidal surveys are conducted for the purpose of reducing to a common level or datum plane, soundings taken at various stages of the tide during hydrographic surveys. Tide predictions for world-wide areas are made to meet specific military requirements. Magnetic surveys are conducted as essential operations in the preparation of nautical and aeronautical charts and for other purposes. Seismological studies and investigations are carried on for the purpose of mapping earthquake areas and to evaluate earthquake risks through the operation of seismographs and the systematic collection of earthquake data.

In addition to its peacetime operations the work of the Coast and Geodetic Survey is closely associated with National Defense and its personnel have served with distinction in every national emergency from the Civil War on. During the Civil War the Coast Survey suspended many of its major operations in order that extensive service could be rendered to the military operations of the Union. Numerous reconnaissances and rapid topographic surveys were made for military use in nearly every important operation of the Army and Navy.

By Congressional authority the President was authorized in 1917 to transfer in time of national emergency to the service and jurisdiction of the War and Navy Departments, such vessels, equipment, stations, and personnel of the Coast and Geodetic Survey as he might deem for the best interests of the country. Under this authority five of the vessels of the Survey with their complements and a number of commissioned officers were transferred to the Navy; also, a number of commissioned officers were transferred to the Army for duty during World War I. At the close of hostilities these men and vessels were returned to the Survey.

When General MacArthur began his reconquest of the Philippines during October 1944 he had with him navigational charts of the area in which landings were to be made. These charts were made by the Coast and Geodetic Survey from surveys carried on during the 40 years of our stewardship of the Islands. They showed the character of the beaches, the safe channels and the locations of dangers to navigation which enabled our ships and landing parties to maneuver with a minimum of hazard.

All activities carried on during World War II were planned for maximum contribution to the war effort. Six of the Survey's nine major ships were transferred to the United States Navy. More than half of its commissioned officers served in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps and a large number of civilian employees joined the military forces. Many special programs were carried out by the office force as the Survey's contribution to the war effort. An extensive war project of major importance was the production of target charts for aerial bombing. Over 1800 different target charts were prepared including charts covering such important objectives as the Ploesti oil fields in Romania and the atom-bombed cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

In periods of emergency maximum effort is concentrated on projects essential to National Defense. Adjustments are made in the volume of work to enable the Survey to meet the strategic needs for its products and services. Planning is now being carried on to meet the increased demands made upon us during the present emergency. Our workload is being greatly increased by demands for nautical and aeronautical charts, tide and current data, geodetic and geographic information, and certain other technical services to meet military requirements. Our resources and trained personnel will be used to the fullest to achieve maximum production in support of the present defense effort.

Admiral Studts, author of the above article, has served as Director of the Coast and Geodetic Survey since 16 May 1950. He was graduated from Catholic University of America (class of 1917) with a degree of Bachelor of Science in Civil Engineering. He entered the military service during World War I, serving the 472nd Engineers, U. S. Army, until 1919.

After the war, Admiral Studts entered the commissioned service of the Coast and Geodetic Survey where he has served successively through the various ranks to his present position. Field assignments included hydrographic surveying in most of the waters under the jurisdiction of the United States, including the Gulf Stream along the Atlantic Coast, the Philippines, and Alaska. In 1946, as commanding officer of the Ship Pathfinder, he initiated a comprehensive surveying program in the strategically important Aleutians, including the important fishing area of Bristol Bay.

Admiral Studts received a commendation in 1936 from the Secretary of Commerce for his expert handling of the Ship Fathomer, in Port San Vicente, Philippine Islands, during and after the typhoon of 15 Aug. 1936.

Admiral and Mrs. Studts and three children, 7, 12, and 13 years of age, reside at 5605 Thirtieth Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

Atlantic Cruise Quotas

Atlantic Fleet reserve training cruises will be available to 607 officers and 3,790 enlisted personnel of the Volunteer and Organized Reserve during April, May and June.

Cruises will embark from three ports — Newport, R. I.; Norfolk, Va.; and Charleston, S. C. Quotas for the cruises have been assigned to seven naval districts and the Potomac River Naval Command.

Text of Documents Released by President in Dismissing General MacArthur

FOLLOWING are the complete texts of the statements and documents released at the White House at the 1 a.m. press conference 11 April:

Statement by the President

10 April 1951

With deep regret I have concluded that General of the Army Douglas MacArthur is unable to give his wholehearted support to the policies of the United States Government and of the United Nations in matters pertaining to his official duties. In view of the specific responsibilities imposed upon me by the Constitution of the United States and the added responsibility which has been entrusted to me by the United Nations, I have decided that I must make a change of command in the Far East. I have, therefore, relieved General MacArthur of his commands and have designated Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway as his successor.

Full and vigorous debate on matters of national policy is a vital element in the constitutional system of our free democracy. It is fundamental, however, that military commanders must be governed by the policies and directives issued to them in the manner provided by our laws and Constitution. In time of crisis, this consideration is particularly compelling.

General MacArthur's place in history as one of our greatest commanders is fully established. The nation owes him a debt of gratitude for the distinguished and exceptional service which he has rendered his country in posts of great responsibility. For that reason I repeat my regret at the necessity for the action I feel compelled to take in his case.

Order to General MacArthur from the President

10 April 1951

I deeply regret that it becomes my duty as President and Commander in Chief of the United States military forces to replace you as Supreme Commander, Allied Powers; Commander in Chief, United Nations Command; Commander in Chief, Far East; and Commanding General, U. S. Army, Far East.

You will turn over your commands, effective at once, to Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway. You are authorized to have issued such orders as are necessary to complete desired travel to such place as you select.

My reasons for your replacement, will be made public concurrently with the delivery to you of the foregoing order, and are contained in the next following message. (See attached Statement by the President.)

Order to Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway From General George C. Marshall, Secretary of Defense.

The President has decided to relieve General MacArthur and appoint you as his successor as Supreme Commander, Allied Powers; Commander in Chief, United Nations Command; Commander in Chief, Far East; and Commanding General, U. S. Army, Far East.

It is realized that your presence in Korea in the immediate future is highly important, but we are sure you can make the proper distribution of your time until you can turn over active command of the Eighth Army to its new commander. For this purpose, Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet is en route to report to you for such duties as you may direct.

Background Documents

6 Dec. 50

From Joint Chiefs of Staff to Commander-in-Chief, Far East, Tokyo, Japan (and other Commanders):

"1. The President, as of 5 Dec., forwarded a memo to all cabinet members and to the chmn NSRB, Administrator ECA, Dir CIA, Administrator ESA and Dir Selective Service, which reads as follows:

"In the light of the present critical international situation, and until further written notice from me, I wish that each one of you would take immediate steps to reduce the number of public speeches pertaining to foreign or military policy made by officials of the departments and agencies of the executive branch. This applies to officials in the field as well as those in Washington.

"No speech, press release, or other public statement concerning foreign policy should be released until it has received clearance from the Department of State.

"No speech, press release, or other public statement concerning military policy should be released until it has received clearance from the Department of Defense.

"In addition to the copies submitted to the Departments of State or Defense for clearance, advance copies of speeches and press releases concerning foreign policy or military policy should be submitted to the White House for information.

"The purpose of this memorandum is not to curtail the flow of information to the American people, but rather to insure that the information made public is accurate and fully in accord with the policies of the United States Government."

2. He also forwarded the following to the Sec State and Sec Def:

"In addition to the policy expressed in my memorandum of this date to the heads of departments, concerning the clearance of speeches and statements, I wish the following steps to be taken:

"Officials overseas, including military commanders and diplomatic representatives, should be ordered to exercise extreme caution in public statements, to clear all but routine statements with their departments, and to refrain from direct communication on military or foreign policy with newspapers, magazines, or other publicity media in the United States."

3. The above is transmitted to you for guidance and appropriate action."

20 Mar. 51

To: Commander in Chief, Far East, Tokyo, Japan From Joint Chiefs of Staff

State planning Presidential announcement shortly that, with clearing of bulk of South Korea of aggressors, United Nations now prepared to discuss conditions of settlement in Korea. Strong UN feeling persists that further diplomatic effort towards settlement should be made before any advance with major forces north of 38th parallel. Time will be required to determine diplomatic reactions and permit new negotiations that may develop. Recognizing that parallel has no military significance, State has asked JCS what authority you should have to permit sufficient freedom of action for next few weeks to provide security for UN forces and maintain contact with enemy. Your recommendations desired.

Text of General MacArthur's Korea Statement

(N. Y. Times, 25 March 1951)

Tokyo:

Operations continue according to schedule and plan. We have now substantially cleared South Korea of organized Communist forces. It is becoming increasingly evident that the heavy destruction along the enemy's lines of supply, caused by our 'round-the-clock' massive air and naval bombardment, has left his troops in the forward battle area deficient in requirements to sustain his operations.

This weakness is being brilliantly exploited by our ground forces. The enemy's human wave tactics definitely failed him as our own forces become seasoned to this form of warfare; his tactics of infiltration are but contributing to his piecemeal losses, and he is showing less stamina than our own troops under rigors of climate, terrain and battle.

Of even greater significance than our tactical success has been the clear revelation that this new enemy, Red China, of such exaggerated and vaunted military power, lacks the industrial capacity to provide adequately many critical items essential to the conduct of modern war.

He lacks manufacturing bases and those raw materials needed to produce, maintain and operate even moderate air and naval power, and he cannot provide the essentials for successful ground operations, such as tanks, heavy artillery and other refinements science has introduced into the conduct of military campaigns.

Formerly his great numerical potential might well have filled this gap, but with the development of existing methods of mass destruction, numbers alone do not offset vulnerability inherent in such deficiencies. Control of the sea and air, which in turn means control over supplies, communications and transportation, are no less essential and decisive now than in the past.

When this control exists as in our case and is coupled with the inferiority of ground firepower, as in the enemy's case, the resulting disparity is such that it cannot be overcome by bravery, however fanatical, or the most gross indifference to human loss.

These military weaknesses have been clearly and definitely revealed since Red China entered upon its undeclared war in Korea. Even under inhibitions which now restrict activity of the United Nations forces and the corresponding military advantages which accrue to Red China, it has been shown its complete inability to accomplish by force of arms the conquest of Korea.

The enemy therefore must by now be painfully aware that a decision of the United Nations to depart from its tolerant effort to contain the war to the area of Korea through expansion of our military operations to his coastal areas and interior bases would doom Red China to the risk of imminent military collapse.

These basic facts being established, there should be no insuperable difficulty arriving at decisions on the Korean problem if the issues are resolved on their own merits without being burdened by extraneous matters not directly related to Korea, such as Formosa and China's seat in the United Nations.

The Korean nation and people which have been so cruelly ravaged must not be sacrificed. That is the paramount concern. Apart from the military area of the problem where the issues are resolved in the course of combat, the fundamental questions continue to be political in nature and must find their answer in the diplomatic sphere.

Within the area of my authority as military commander, however, it should be needless to say I stand ready at any time to confer in the field with the commander in chief of the enemy forces in an earnest effort to find any military means whereby the realization of the political objectives of the United Nations in Korea, to which no nation may justly take exceptions, might be accomplished without further bloodshed.

To: Commander-in-Chief, Far East, Tokyo, Japan From: Joint Chiefs of Staff, Personal for MacArthur

The President has directed that your attention be called to his order as transmitted 6 December 1950. In view of the information given you 20 March 1951 any further statements by you must be coordinated as prescribed in the order of 6 December.

The President has also directed that in the event Communist military leaders request an armistice in the field, you immediately report that fact to the JCS for instructions.

4 Jan. 51

To: Commander in Chief, United Nations Command, Tokyo, Japan From: Joint Chiefs of Staff

1. The problem of arming additional ROK manpower is under consideration by JCS. Full info is furnished:

a. No machine guns, mortars, anti-tank guns or artillery can be made available from the ZI; however, the following can be made available in a reasonably short time:

- (1) 160,000 model 1903 rifles, with a backup of spare parts for 50,000.
- (2) 70,000 M3 submachine guns.
- (3) 150,000 M1 carbines.
- (4) 8,000 model 1918 Browning automatic rifles.

b. Ammo supply for the M3 submachine guns, the Browning auto rifles, 100,000 model 1903 rifles and 100,000 M1 carbines is feasible.

2. Based on availability of above weapons it appears that ROK forces could be increased by from 200,000 to 300,000 men, armed with rifles, auto rifles, carbines and submachine guns. However, unless used in part to form new divisions, which would be relatively ineffective due to lack of infantry supporting weapons and artillery, it is probable that only on the order of 75,000 can be effectively utilized initially, with an ultimate build-up to approximately 100,000 in the following type organizations:

a. Augment the rifle strength of ROK div and other UN forces.

b. Form special units for guarding lines of communication and for operations against Communist guerrillas.

c. Conduct guerrilla operations in Communist-held territory.

3. JCS are of the opinion that recruitment for new units should include, but not be limited to, the membership of the Korean Youth Corps and/or any other group in the ROK. Arms should be issued only to organized units under the control and discipline of the mil authorities in Korea.

4. Request your comments and recommendations to include:

a. Total number of additional ROK personnel that can be profitably employed.

b. Method of employment, namely, new divisions, additional strength in current divisions, etc.

c. Length of time required to organize and train additional manpower.

d. Other points in connection with current problem.

6 Jan. 51

From: Commander in Chief, Far East, Tokyo, Japan To: Department of the Army for the Joint Chiefs of Staff

Considered here that influence of past and possible future events is of importance equal to or greater than materiel availability in analyzing problem of arming additional ROK manpower.

Continued effort has been made since 25 June 1950 to effect the most practicable utilization of Korean pers. In addition to materially augmenting the ROK Army, members of the Youth Corps and other qualified males have been supplied with significant quantities of small arms for the purpose of strengthening police units, anti-guerrilla security elements and creation of special organizations to operate in enemy held territory. Despite the relatively large number of non-army pers now under arms, enemy guerrilla units continue to operate effectively in many widely scattered regions of South Korea. Friendly guerrilla forces, however, have accomplished little in Communist rear areas—primarily due to lack of strong willed leadership.

The type and quantity of weapons indicated by JCS as being currently available would have equal application to equipping the National Police Reserve of Japan, the immediate requirements for which were stated. Unless the quantities listed in JCS message are in excess of the current and foreseeable needs of the NPRJ, it is possible that the over-all interests of the U. S. will be better served by making these weapons available to increase the security of Japan rather than arming additional ROK forces.

In view of the probable restricted size of the battle field in which we may operate in the near future, and the high priority of NPRJ requirements, the value of attempting to organize, train and arm additional ROK forces in the immediate future appears questionable. It is considered that the short-range requirement can best be met by utilizing available manpower to replace losses in existing ROK units rather than creating new organizations. The long-range requirement for or desirability of arming additional ROK pers appears to be dependent primarily upon determination of the future U. S. mil position with respect to both the Korean campaign and the generally critical situation in the Far East.

Letter to Representative Martin of Massachusetts:
(From Congressional Record of April 5, 1951)

20 March 1951

Dear Congressman Martin:

I am most grateful for your note of the eighth forwarding me a copy of your address of February 12. The latter I have read with much interest, and find that with the passage of years you have certainly lost none of your old time punch.

My views and recommendations with respect to the situation created by Red China's entry into war against us in Korea have been submitted to Washington in most complete detail. Generally these views are well known and clearly understood, as they follow the conventional pattern of meeting force with maximum counter force as we have never failed to do in the past. Your view with respect to the utilization of the Chinese forces on Formosa is in conflict with neither logic nor this tradition.

It seems strangely difficult for some to realize that here in Asia is where the Communist conspirators have elected to make their play for global conquest, and that we have joined the issue thus raised on the battlefield; that here we fight Europe's war with arms while the diplomats there still fight it with words; that if we lose the war to communism in Asia the fall of Europe is inevitable, win it and Europe most probably would avoid war and yet preserve freedom. As you point out, we must win. There is no substitute for victory.

With renewed thanks and expressions of most cordial regard, I am,

Faithfully yours,

DOUGLAS MACARTHUR

The President's Speech

At 10:30 o'clock the night of 11 April, the same day he announced the relief of General MacArthur, President Truman made the following radio address to the American people:

I want to talk plainly to you tonight about what we are doing in Korea and about our policy in the Far East.

In the simplest terms, what we are doing in Korea is this: We are trying to prevent a Third World War.

I think most people in this country recognized that fact last June. And they warmly supported the decision of the Government to help the Republic of Korea against the communist aggressors. Now, many persons, even some who applauded our decision to defend Korea, have forgotten the basic reason for our action.

It is right for us to be in Korea. It was right last June. It is right today.

I want to remind you why this is true. The communists in the Kremlin are engaged in a monstrous conspiracy to stamp out freedom all over the world. If they were to succeed, the United States would be numbered among their principal victims. It must be clear to everyone that the United States cannot and will not—sit idly by and await foreign conquest. The only question is: When is the best time to meet the threat and how?

The best time to meet the threat is in the beginning. It is easier to put out a fire in the beginning when it is small than after it has become a roaring blaze.

And the best way to meet the threat of aggression is for the peace-loving nations to act together. If they don't act together, they are likely to be picked off, one by one.

If they had followed the right policies in the 1930's—if the free countries had acted together, to crush the aggression of the dictators, and if they had acted in the beginning, when the aggression was small—there probably would have been no World War II.

If history has taught us anything, it is that aggression anywhere in the world is a threat to peace everywhere in the world. When that aggression is supported by the cruel and selfish rulers of a powerful nation who are bent on conquest, it becomes a clear and present danger to the security and independence of every free nation.

This is a lesson that most people in this country have learned thoroughly. This is the basic reason why we joined in creating the United Nations. And, since the end of World War II, we have been putting that lesson into practice—we have been working with other free nations to check the aggressive designs of the Soviet Union before they can result in a third world war.

That is what we did in Greece, when that nation was threatened by the aggression of international communism.

The attack against Greece could have led to general war. But this country came to the aid of Greece. The United Nations supported Greek resistance. With our help, the determination and efforts of the Greek people defeated the attack on the spot.

Another big communist threat to peace was the Berlin blockade. That too could have led to war. But again it was settled because free men would not back down in an emergency.

The aggression against Korea is the boldest and most dangerous move the communists have yet made.

The attack on Korea was part of a greater plan for conquering all of Asia.

I would like to read to you from a secret intelligence report which came to us after the attack on Korea. It is a report of a speech a communist army officer in North Korea gave to a group of spies and saboteurs last May, one month before South Korea was invaded. The report shows in great detail how this invasion was part of a carefully prepared plot. Here is part of what the communist officer, who had been trained in Moscow, told his men: "Our forces," he said, "are scheduled to attack South Korea forces about the middle of June . . . The coming attack on South Korea marks the first step toward the liberation of Asia."

Notice that he used the word "liberation." This is communist double-talk meaning "conquest."

Again "liberation" in commie language means conquest.

I have another secret intelligence report here. This one tells what another communist officer in the Far East told his men several months before the invasion of Korea. Here is what he said: "In order to successfully undertake the long awaited world revolution, we must first unify Asia . . . Java, Indo-China, Malaya, India, Tibet, Thailand, Philippines, and Japan are our ultimate targets . . . The United States is the only obstacle on our road for the liberation of all countries in southeast Asia. In other words, we must unify the people of Asia and crush the United States."

That is what the communist leaders are telling their people, and that is what they have been trying to do.

They want to control all Asia from the Kremlin.

This plan of conquest is in flat contradiction to what we believe. We believe that Korea belongs to the Koreans, that India belongs to the Indians—that all the nations of Asia should be free to work out their affairs in their own way. This is the basis of peace in the Far East and everywhere else.

The whole communist imperialism is back of the attack on peace in the Far East. It was the Soviet Union that trained and equipped the North Koreans for aggression. The Chinese communists massed 44 well-trained and well-equipped divisions on the Korean frontier. These were the troops they threw into battle when the North Korean communists were beaten.

The question we have had to face is whether the communist plan of conquest can be stopped without a general war. Our Government and other countries associated with us in the United Nations believe that the best chance of stopping it without general war is to meet the attack in Korea and defeat it there.

That is what we have been doing. It is a difficult and bitter task.

But so far it has been successful.

So far, we have prevented World War III. So far, by fighting a limited war in Korea, we have prevented aggression from succeeding, and bringing on a general war. And the ability of the whole free world to resist communist aggression has been greatly improved.

We have taught the enemy a lesson. He has found out that aggression is not cheap or easy. Moreover, men all over the world who want to remain free have been given new courage and new hope. They know now that the champions of freedom can stand up and fight and that they will stand up and fight.

Our resolute stand in Korea is helping the forces of freedom now fighting in Indo-China and other countries in that part of the world. It has already slowed down the timetable of conquest.

In Korea itself, there are signs that the enemy is building up his ground forces for a new mass offensive. We also know that there have been large increases in the enemy's available air forces.

If a new attack comes, I feel confident it will be turned back. The United Nations fighting forces are tough and able and well equipped. They are fighting for a just cause. They are proving to all the world that the principle of collective security will work. We are proud of all these forces for the magnificent job they have done against heavy odds. We pray that their efforts may succeed, for upon their success may hinge the peace of the world.

The communist side must now choose its course of action. The communist rulers may press the attack against us. They may take further action which will spread the conflict. They have that choice, and with it the awful responsibility for what may follow. The communists also have the choice of a peaceful settlement which could lead to a general relaxation of tensions in the Far East. The decision is theirs, because the forces of the United Nations will strive to limit the conflict if possible.

We do not want to see the conflict in Korea extended. We are trying to prevent a world war—not to start one. The best way to do that is to make it plain that we and the other free countries will continue to resist the attack.

But you may ask why can't we take other steps to punish the aggressor. Why don't we bomb Manchuria and China itself? Why don't we assist the Chinese Nationalist troops to land on the mainland of China?

If we were to do these things we would be running a very grave risk of starting a general war. If that were to happen, we would have brought about the exact situation we are trying to prevent.

If we were to do these things, we would become entangled in a vast conflict on the continent of Asia and our task would become immeasurably more difficult all over the world.

What would suit the ambitions of the Kremlin better than for our military forces to be committed to a full scale war with Red China?

It may well be that, in spite of our best efforts, the communists may spread the war. But it would be wrong—tragically wrong—for us to take the initiative in extending the war.

The dangers are great. Make no mistake about it. Behind the North Koreans and Chinese communists in the front lines stand additional millions of Chinese soldiers. And behind the Chinese stand the tanks, the planes, the submarines, the soldiers, and the scheming rulers of the Soviet Union.

Our aim is to avoid the spread of the conflict.

The course we have been following is the one best calculated to avoid an all out war. It is the course consistent with our obligation to do all we can to maintain international peace and security. Our experience in Greece and Berlin shows that it is the most effective course of action we can follow.

First of all, it is clear that our efforts in Korea can blunt the will of the Chinese communists to continue the struggle. The United Nations forces have put up a tremendous fight in Korea and have inflicted very heavy casualties on the enemy. Our forces are stronger now than they have been before. These are plain facts which may discourage the Chinese communists from continuing their attack.

Second, the free world as a whole is growing in military strength every day. In the United States, in Western Europe, and throughout the world, free men are alert to the Soviet threat and are building their defenses. This may discourage the communist rulers from continuing the war in Korea—and from undertaking new acts of aggression elsewhere.

If the communist authorities realize that they cannot defeat us in Korea, if they realize it would be foolhardy to widen the hostilities beyond Korea, then they may recognize the folly of continuing their aggression. A peaceful settlement may then be possible. The door is always open.

Then we may achieve a settlement in Korea which will not compromise the principles and purposes of the United Nations.

I have thought long and hard about this question of extending the war in Asia. I have discussed it many times with the ablest military advisers in the country. I believe with all my heart that the course we are following is the best course.

I believe that we must try to limit the war to Korea for these vital reasons: to make sure that the precious lives of our fighting men are not wasted; to see that the security of our country and the free world is not needlessly jeopardized; and to prevent a third world war.

A number of events have made it evident that General MacArthur did not agree with that policy. I have therefore considered it essential to relieve General MacArthur so that there would be no doubt or confusion as to the real purpose and aim of our policy.

It was with the deepest personal regret that I found myself compelled to take this action. General MacArthur is one of our greatest military commanders. But the cause of world peace is much more important than any individual.

The change in commands in the Far East means no change whatever in the policy of the United States. We will carry on the fight in Korea with vigor and determination in an effort to bring the war to a speedy and successful conclusion.

The new commander, Lt. Gen. Matthew Ridgway, has already demonstrated that he has the great qualities of leadership needed for this task.

We are ready, at any time, to negotiate for a restoration of peace in the area. But we will not engage the appeasement. We are only interested in real peace.

Real peace can be achieved through a settlement based on the following factors:

One: the fighting must stop.

Two: concrete steps must be taken to insure that the fighting will not break out again.

Three: there must be an end to the aggression.

A settlement founded upon these elements would open the way for the unification of Korea and the withdrawal of all foreign forces.

In the meantime, I want to be clear about our military objective. We are fighting to resist an outrageous aggression in Korea. We are trying to keep the Korean conflict from spreading to other areas. But at the same time we must conduct our military activities so as to insure the security of our forces. This is essential if they are to continue the fight until the enemy abandons its ruthless attempt to destroy the Republic of Korea.

That is our military objective—to repel attack and to restore peace.

In the hard fighting in Korea, we are proving that collective action among nations is not only a high principle but a workable means of resisting aggression. Defeat of aggression in Korea may be the turning point in the world's search for a practical way of achieving peace and security.

The struggle of the United Nations in Korea is a struggle for peace.

The free nations have united their strength in an effort to prevent a third world war.

That war can come if the communist rulers want it to come. But this Nation and its allies will not be responsible for its coming.

We do not want to widen the conflict. We will use every effort to prevent that disaster. And in so doing, we know that we are following the great principles of peace, freedom, and justice.

Gen. MacArthur's Staff

The announcement by Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney, AUS, that he will seek retirement undoubtedly will be only one of numerous shifts of officers likely to occur following the relief of General of the Army Douglas MacArthur.

(Published herewith is the text of a statement General Whitney issued in Tokyo regarding instructions from the White House on the release of public statements by military commanders.)

General Whitney, who will be 54 years old on 20 May, was graduated from National University of Law at Washington, D. C., in 1923.

He held a commission in the Regular Army from 1 July 1920, when he was made a second lieutenant in the Air Service and promoted to first lieutenant that date, until 30 June 1927, when he resigned to practice law and serve as a corporation executive until reappointment in the Army in 1940.

He has been serving as Chief of the Government Section, General Headquarters, Staff of the Supreme Commander for the Allied Powers at Tokyo since December 1945. General Whitney came to this post from previous duty as Chief of the Philippine Regional Section, Allied Intelligence Bureau, in which he served from April 1944 to November of that year when he was made Chief of the Civil Affairs Section of the U. S. Armed Forces in the Pacific.

General Whitney was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for planning and organizing guerilla activities in the Philippines from 24 May 1943 to 30 April 1945. He also holds the Legion of Merit.

He was promoted to temporary major general in Nov 1950, with date of rank from March 1949. He was promoted to lieutenant colonel (temp) on 1 Feb. 1942; to colonel (temp) on 19 May 1942; to brigadier general (temp) on 14 Jan. 1945; to brigadier general, Officers Reserve Corps, on 11 March 1949.

Gen. Whitney's Statement

The following is the text of General Whitney's statement issued after General MacArthur's removal by the President.

"In clarification of news dispatches from the United States making reference to the President's directive of 6 December enjoining against the issuance of public statements on foreign policy without reference to the State Department for clearance, Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney of General MacArthur's staff today pointed out the following:

"1. The directive of 6 December was not directed to General MacArthur personally but was directed to all executive agencies of the Government.

"2. Immediately after its receipt, General MacArthur submitted a proposed communique to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who informed him among other things that it was not necessary to submit communiques referencing military operations.

"3. The President, in a press conference in January, appeared to this headquarters to specifically define General MacArthur's authority, but denied that there was any curb on his authority 'to speak freely on the Korean war.'

"4. Furthermore, the directive of 6 December, by its terms and spirit, was interpreted (Please turn to Page 919)

■ FORT JAY, N. Y. The April meeting of the Ladies Luncheon Club of First Army and Fort Jay Headquarters was held at the Governor's Island Officers' Club last week. The luncheon was highlighted by a lecture given by Mrs. Kay Jamesson, Director of the Richard Hudnut Salon and DuBarry Success School, Fifth Avenue, on "The Look For Spring," which included hair styling, make-up, figure slimming exercises, spot reduction and re-proportioning the figure for spring.

Mrs. I. D. White, wife of Maj. Gen. I. D. White, new Chief of Staff of First Army, was honored and introduced to the club. Hostesses for the luncheon were wives of the Provost Marshal Section of First Army and Post Headquarters with Mrs. L. P. Caywood as Chairman.

■ HEADQUARTERS, U. S. ARMY, ALASKA. Lt. Col. Harvey K. Palmer, Jr., who has been assistant Inspector General, Headquarters, United States Army, Alaska, since 17 April 1950 has been announced Acting Inspector General, USARAL, by Maj. Gen. Julian W. Cunningham, Commanding General, U. S. Army, Alaska. Prior to his assignment in Alaska Colonel Palmer was executive for the Organized Reserve Corps of Maryland. He succeeds former Inspector General Col. Everett L. Upson who has been announced Chief of Staff, U. S. Army, Alaska.

■ BROOKE AH, FT. SAM HOUSTON, TEX. Dr. Perrin H. Long, professor of preventive medicine at Johns Hopkins University, spoke on "The Conquest of Infectious Diseases" at the monthly luncheon meeting of the Wives of the Officers of Brooke Army Hospital on 5 April.

Mrs. Arthur G. Gaines, wife of the commanding general of the Hospital, presided at the luncheon, and Mrs. Milton S. Thompson, wife of the chief of the Orthopedic Service, introduced the speaker. Dr. Long, a reserve officer with the rank of Colonel, was on a tour of active duty at Brooke Army Medical Center from 29 March to 12 April.

■ BROOKS AFB, TEX. On 27 March the Officers' Wives Club entertained a "world" of guests at a Foreign Brides tea. Foreign born wives of officers from Kelly, Lackland and Randolph Fields were invited together with the Executive Boards of the Wives' clubs of those fields, including Mrs. Clements McMullen, wife of Major General McMullen of Kelly Field, and Mrs. Carl B. McDaniel, wife of Brigadier General McDaniel of Randolph Field.

The Brooks AFB Club was cosmopolitan with flags of England, France, Ireland, Belgium, Holland, Italy, Australia, Russia, Czechoslovakia, Egypt, Germany, Poland, Austria, New Zealand, and Canada. Mrs. Gerda Rogers, wife of M/Sgt. Thaddeus Rogers, exhibited her collection of dolls costumed according to historical eras in outstanding areas of Europe.

Those presiding at the tea table were: Mrs. Hal F. Simmons, Mrs. Alex J. Belida, Mrs. Edwin Towers, Mrs. Mathew Lewnowski, and Mrs. James R. Carr.

The following new members of the Executive Board were installed: President, Mrs. Leonard J. Harless; Vice Pres., Mrs. Chester M. Hart; Second Vice Pres., Mrs. Jack P. Van Tull; Sec'y, Mrs. George E. Tinker III; Ass't Sec'y, Mrs. Gordon G. Rice; Treas., Mrs. Linton J. Bassett; Ass't Treas., Mrs. Chas. E. Richter.

Hostesses for the tea were the Social committee: Mrs. Edwin M. Franklin, Mrs. Geo. W. Shakelford, Mrs. Eugene Murphree, Mrs. Gordon G. Rice, and the Hospitality Committee: Mrs. Peter C. Fenlon, Mrs. Leonard J. Harless, Mrs. Steven A. Moren, Mrs. Dmitri Evdokimoff, Mrs. B. T. Bradford, Mrs. Linton J. Bassett, Mrs. Joseph E. Warrick, Mrs. John F. Hale, Mrs. Geo. E. Tinker, and Mrs. Richard B. Smith.

■ FORT BRAGG, N. C. On 30 March the Choral Group of the Officers' Wives' Club presented a spring musicale, which was very well received by members of the club and their guests. Others participating in the program were Mrs. Stuart Beckley, who gave the welcome address; Mrs. John Norviel, harpist; and Mrs. A. P. Hobrecht, who read the Army Wife. The Choral Group is under the direction of Mrs. Wallace Hale with Mrs. E. A. Callahan, accompanist.

■ HAMILTON AFB, CALIF. The Materiel Wives of the Western Air Defense Force entertained at a tea which was held in the Sunbeam Room of the Base Officers' Club recently. Highlight of the afternoon was the fortune teller, Mrs. Anne Stannage of San Francisco, who entertained the guests with her prognostications. A lovely pair of vases, donated by Mrs. George Cadwalader, Jr., were raffled off and were won by Mrs. Robert A. Stephens.

Hostesses for the party were: Mrs. Frederick C. Nelson, Mrs. Stanley G. Huey, Mrs. Vinson Murphy, Mrs. A. J. Reynolds, Mrs. C. V. Steiner, Mrs. John R. Crume, Mrs. George Cadwalader, Jr., Mrs. K. Fleming, Mrs. R. A. Stephens, Mrs. C. H. McCracken, Mrs. C. E. Voorhees, Mrs. Howard B. Gampfer, and Mrs. Chambers.

Guests were: Mesdames Hugo P. Rush, William R. Morgan, Robert Berry, Brian O'Neill, C. W. Gilkes, Nancy Shea, Katherine Dayton, E. A. Rein, Stuart Elliott, T. F. Barrett, C. H. Bradley, A. F. Birch, John Carlson, Cuane Skaggs, William Irwin, William Simpson, George Cadwalader, Jr., Mrs. Gordon Johnson, Mrs. William P. Tedards, and Mrs. Olson.

■ FORT EUSTIS, VA. Lt. Col. Milfred J. Peters has been named to succeed Lt. Col. Friedrich A. O. Wildforster as Secretary of The Transportation School. Colonel Wildforster was appointed to serve with the School's Civilian Components Branch.

■ MARCH AFB, CALIF. Members of the Officers' Wives' Club were cordially entertained by the Navy at Terminal Island, Long Beach on 27 March. Mrs. Glenn Campbell, whose Navy doctor husband, Captain Campbell, is presently on duty with the Air Force, made all the arrangements for the trip.

Mrs. Campbell had as her guests for luncheon some Navy doctors' wives, friends of long standing, who also served so graciously as hostesses for the occasion. They were Mrs. L. Vaughn, who is the President of the Wives of Navy Doctors' Club, Mrs. G. Cottle, Mrs. E. M. Wade, Mrs. J. A. Kelley, Mrs. A. Alfred, Mrs. J. R. Phillips, Mrs. F. M. Rohow, Mrs. J. Walwood, Mrs. E. Taylor and Mrs. J. Root.

Luncheon tables at Allen Center, the Commissioned Officers' Mess, were attractively decorated with blue and gold flowers to honor the Air Force visitors. Seated at the head table with Mrs. Campbell, March AFB, OWC President, were Mrs. J. Y. Dannenberg, wife of Captain Dannenberg, who is the commander of the U. S. Naval Base, Los Angeles, Mrs. M. C. Heine, whose husband is the commanding officer of the U. S. Naval Station, Long Beach, Mrs. Emmett O'Donnell, wife of Major General O'Donnell who is commanding General of the 15th Air Force, Mrs. C. J. Bondley, whose husband, Brigadier General Bondley, just returned from Korea, Mrs. Albert J. Shower, a Navy junior and wife of Colonel Shower, who is Inspector General of the 15th Air Force, Mrs. John B. Henry, Jr., Mrs. Phillips, Mrs. J. J. Catton, Mrs. Alfred, Mrs. Vaughn and Mrs. Cottle.

■ FORT CAMPBELL, KY. Brig. Gen. Wayne C. Smith, USA, assistant division commander of the 11th Airborne Division and Deputy Post Commander here, has become one of the few general officers in the Army to qualify for the Airborne's coveted Senior Parachutist's Badge. Maj. Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer presented the badge to General Smith when he made the final jump in the rugged series required for the award.

The requirements for both officers and enlisted men are a minimum of 30 jumps that must include five with combat equipment, two night jumps, and completion of a difficult jumpmaster's course.

■ EGLIN AFB, FLA. As an incentive to attend the recent Koffee Klatsch in honor of new Officers' Wives Club members, the program and entertainment committee awarded small prizes to the ladies who represented their home state in the largest number. The Texas contingent were the winners, edging out the Florida representation by one. Receiving the hand made shell earrings given to members of the winning group were Mrs. G. G. Guyon, Mrs. L. C. Draper, Mrs. C. E. Seyster, Mrs. R. A. Putnam, Mrs. J. R. McCray, Mrs. D. A. Beardsley, Mrs. T. E. Sledge, Mrs. C. Burnett, and Mrs. D. Wolf. Honor guests of the party were the following eighteen new members: Mrs. J. W. Oyler, Mrs. J. M. Gold, Mrs. J. R. McCray, Mrs. E. Coldwater, Mrs. A. L. Krasne, Mrs. P. W. Swanson, Mrs. D. A. into one annual appeal for contributions. The first annual joint charities drive to establish the "APG Combined Welfare Fund" will be conducted here during the entire month of September. The only exception will be the American Red Cross drive which is conducted every March. Due to its Congressional charter and military regulations, the Red Cross drive may not be included in a consolidated drive.

An all-out effort will be made in September to obtain contributions of a day's pay from all civilian and military personnel at Aberdeen Proving Ground. Military personnel will be asked to include all allowances in computing their day's pay.

Members of the fund council appointed by General MacMorland for the purpose of controlling and distributing donations are the following major unit commanders: Col. Harrison Shaler, Ordnance Board; Col. Samuel Smellow, The Ordnance School; Col. Alden P. Taber, Ballistic Research Laboratories; Lt. Col. Martin S. Werngren, Ordnance Replacement Training Center; and Mr. Thomas F. Collieran, Development and Proof Service. Col. Thomas K. Vincent, deputy commander, will preside over the council.

The members of the three-man committee which investigated the possibilities of a one-time drive were Lt. Col. Ray C. Isaacs, Lt. Col. Roy C. Brewer and Mr. Baker Middleton, chief, civilian personnel division.

LADD AFB, ALASKA. Highlight of a recent Officers' Wives Club business luncheon was a Style Show sponsored by leading Fairbanks women's apparel shops, Dale's Hollywood Shop and Lucille's Apparel.

Mrs. William Donnelly was the commentator and models included Fran Bianchi, Barbara Bowden, Edna Clark, Dee Wright, Margo Worthington, Beverly Benson, Martha Yeargin and Edna Mae Montilla.

FORT BENNING, GA. The Woman's club held a special meeting last week for the purpose of electing officers for the 1951-1952 season. The new officers are: Mrs. George A. Millesier, president; Mrs. Charles Craig, first vice president; Mrs. Robert Linvill, second vice president; Mrs. Sheppard A. Booth, Jr., corresponding secretary; Mrs. James Strain, recording secretary; Mrs. E. C. Navare, auditor, and Mrs. John Zellink, treasurer.

NASD, PHILADELPHIA, PA. Rear Adm. and Mrs. S. E. McCarty, SC, USN, have been entertained at a round of parties given in their honor, prior to Admiral McCarty's retirement from the Navy. On 31 March Admiral and Mrs. McCarty were guests of honor at a formal Farewell Dinner Dance, given by the Officers of the ASO/NASD Commissioned Officers' Mess. Capt. A. Kohlhass, Jr., SC, USN, officiated as Toastmaster, and Vice Adm. E. D. Foster, SC, USN (Ret.) was Guest Speaker. Admiral McCarty is being relieved by Rear Adm. R. J. Arnold, SC, USN, on 17 April.

SAN DIEGO, CALIF. Mrs. Thos. A. Durham, wife of Commodore Durham, USN-Ret., entertained with an afternoon tea recently in honor of Miss Dorothy Jean Burke, daughter of Lt. and Mrs. William E. Burke, who on 20 April will wed the Durhams' son, Ens. Andrew Merrill Durham, (SC), USN. On 30 March, Capt. and Mrs. Jos. B. Paschal entertained informally with a buffet supper in their NAS quarters. Enjoying their hospitality were: Vice Adm. and Mrs. Thos. L. Sprague, Rear Adm. and Mrs. Thos. B. Williamson, Capt. and Mrs. Frank Turner and Raphael Weir.

Harbor House, on 1 April, was the scene of a get-together by a group of wives whose husbands are naval officers attached to the hospital ship, USS Haven. In the party were: Mmes. M. F. Sherrill, Robert J. Lang, John L. Koethe, Bernard H. Pender, Leonard H. Barber and George Denny.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Wm. T. Clement entertained as their houseguest this week, Col. Katherine Tolle, USMC, (WR), of Washington, D. C. Colonel Tolle was on an official inspection trip and in her honor the Clements entertained with a luncheon in their exquisite garden which now is in full bloom with myriads of gay Spring flowers.

WHEELUS FIELD, TRIPOLI, LIBYA. Manpower conferees from all bases of Military Air Transport Service's Atlantic Division met at this North African installation from 26 March through 31 March. Purpose of the special conferences was to establish manpower requirements and "yardsticks" for a MATS-type organization similar to such manpower guides already established for other type Air Force units.

The special manpower discussions were held under direction of Lt. Col. Keith D. Cloe, Chief of the Manpower and Organization Branch in Atlantic Division headquarters. Representatives attending the conference, in addition to Colonel Cloe, were: Maj. Dale E. Sauer, Atlantic Division; Maj. Marvin Tihlman, Lages; Maj. George Patton, 1602d Air Transport Wing; Maj. Jackson Phipps, Westover AFB; Capt. Edward Green, Bermuda Base Command; and Capt. Frank Sylvestre, Wheelus Field.

Wheelus Field, an installation of MATS' Atlantic Division, is commanded by Col. Fred O. Easley, Jr.

SHAW AFB, S. C. The 363d Tactical Reconnaissance Wing, formerly located at Langley AFB, Va., and famed "Checked Board" Unit of World War II, recently established operations here under command of Col. John R. Dyas.

This intelligence seeking agency is charged with the responsibility of furnishing land, sea and air forces with information concerning disposition, movement and activity of friendly and hostile forces, day or night. To accomplish its primary mission, the tactical squadrons are equipped with the RB-26 "Invader" and RF-80 "Shooting Star."

U. S. FORCES IN AUSTRIA. Maj. Gen. Paul W. Kendall, USA, Deputy Commanding General of the United States Forces in Austria and World War II commander of the 88th Infantry Division, will return to the United States about the middle of this month to assume the post of Inspector of Infantry, Office of the Chief Army Field Forces, Fort Monroe, Va. In this post he succeeds Maj. Gen. John William O'Daniel, who has been assigned as Commanding General of the VII Corps at Fort George G. Meade, Maryland. General Kendall first joined the Command in May 1948, as Commanding General, Zone Command Austria. He became Deputy Commanding General, USFA, on 1 June 1950.

MUNICH QM DEPOT, GERMANY. A secret well kept led to a birthday surprise recently for Col. E. V. Macatee, Munich Quartermaster Depot Commander. It took place during the regular monthly dinner dance held by club members. Only a small group of people were aware of what was to take place. Immediately after dinner a huge cake was carried into the room. Guests were informed of the surprise just before the cake arrived.

MILDENHALL, SUFFOLK, ENGLAND. In reciprocation for the outstanding hospitality with which they were welcomed to the United Kingdom, two American Army and Air Force units at this base recently joined in sponsoring a reception and cocktail party in the ante-room of the RAF Mess for their honored guests, the Officers of the Royal Air Force at this base and their ladies.

Col. Metticus W. May, Jr., Commanding Officer, and the Officers of the 32d Antiaircraft

Artillery Brigade, together with the Officers of the United States Air Force here, were the hosts.

Colonel May stated, "Never in my military career have I experienced finer hospitality, as an individual or for an organization, than that with which we have been received by the British Military and civilians, they have gone all out to assist us and make us feel welcome."

KELLY AFB, TEX. After more than seven years of air evacuation duty, Capt. Constance Corbett, chief of MATS' Continental Division flight nurses, will put aside her Form 5 (flight log) and take up the almost forgotten routine of a hospital nurse. Her next assignment will be with the station hospital at Patrick AFB, Cocoa, Fla. She has more than 3000 hours of flying time in the air evacuation of patients.

Her transfer from air evacuation comes as a result of the new MATS policy of rotating flight nurses to ground duties, who have been flying 18 months or more, thereby making room for the steady influx of newly trained nurses who are graduating with the latest methods learned while attending the flight nurse school at Gunter AFB, Montgomery, Ala.

■ FORT MEADE, MD. Maj. Gen. William H. Sands, Commanding General of the Twenty-ninth Division (Maryland-Virginia and West Virginia National Guard) and 52 members of his staff recently made a tour of the reception center here to see the center in operation. Top-ranking officers accompanying General Sands were Brig. Gens. William C. Purnell and Henry C. Evans and Col. William C. Baxter.

The 3d Armored Cavalry Regiment turned out in full strength at a retreat parade honoring their new Commanding Officer, Col. James O. Curtis, Jr., on 4 April.

■ ARMY CHEMICAL CENTER, MD. The military and civilian personnel contributed $4,052.02 to the American Red Cross Drive during the 1951 campaign.

Lt. Col. Edgar V. H. Bell, former commander of the 2d Chemical Mortar Battalion, who has returned from a tour of duty in Korea, recently addressed the Army Chemical Center officers at the weekly Officer Information Program. His subject was "Korea Operations of the 2d Chemical Mortar Battalion."

■ CAMP CARSON, COLO. Nineteen master sergeants have been promoted to Warrant Officer Junior Grade.

The new "mistlers" are: Clinton F. Andrus, Dwight L. Beck, Henry E. Bertram, Mervin T. Black, James Campbell, Steve Cigan, Daniel H. Determan, Thomas A. Drake, Alrow J. Funk.

Also: Franklin E. Goiday, Cecil J. Hayson, Curtis E. Hoover, Glenn W. Jones, John V. Lake, Carl W. Livingston, Joseph B. Lovett, Loren D. Norland, Atley S. Olson, William F. Wilson.

■ LANGLEY AFB, VA. Mrs. John K. Cannon, wife of Lieutenant General Cannon, TAC Commander, addressed the Women's Club at their regular monthly luncheon 4 April. She told the fascinating story of a visit to Russia in the summer of 1950 when General and Mrs. Cannon were guests of Ambassador and Mrs. Kirk at the American Embassy in Moscow.

Mrs. Cannon was escorted by Mrs. Frank J. Siebenaler, Club President, and was introduced by Mrs. Ira D. Snyder, program chairman. Mrs. Leroy E. Van Nostrand, assistant and Secretary to Mrs. Henry H. Arnold during World War II, was a special guest. Mrs. Van Nostrand is a resident of Hampton, Va.

The luncheon was sponsored by the wives of the 4400th Combat Crew Training Group under the chairmanship of Mrs. John P. Crocker.

The 43 hostesses were headed by Mrs. C. S. Chesterman, assisted by Mesdames J. E. Butler, F. M. Ford, B. R. McBride, and Robert G. Sheldow. The Mesdames Crocker, Earl W. Cummings, Henry L. Law, and Oscar L. Watson received.

■ FORT KNOX, KY. Lt. Gen. Joseph M. Swing, USA, Commandant of the Army War College, was the principal speaker last week at graduation exercises for 220 officers who completed the Armored School's Advanced Course. There were also 19 officers from Allied nations included in the graduation roster.

General Swing spoke of the importance of the Army school system, declaring that "we must continue to train to a high degree the Regular Army, because it is the core around which we have twice mobilized within the last ten years, and on which we must depend to an even greater extent in the case of a full emergency."

"We train the civilian components to the maximum practicable extent within the personnel, funds, and facilities available," he said. "We must continue to train to an extremely high degree the Regular Army and extended active duty nucleus."

"The Army school system in a way substitutes for the large standing Army which would be necessary to make us secure against aggression," he added. "It is peacetime preparation for war—the only justification for the existence of military forces."

■ FORT BLISS, TEX. Lt. Col. Louis B. Knight, formerly head of the Survey Board and member of the Officer Candidate School Board at Fort Bliss, has been retired from active Army duty with the rank of colonel. He and Mrs. Knight are now on an extended motor trip before establishing their permanent residence.

■ RANDOLPH FIELD, TEX. Capt. Frederick H. Rohles, Jr. of the Air Force School of Aviation Medicine has received orders assigning him to the Arctic Aeromedical Laboratory in Fairbanks, Alaska. Captain Rohles, who is Officer in Charge of the statistical analysis section of the school's Department of Psychology, will report at the Alaskan base in June where he will work on psychological aspects of acclimatization to extreme cold.

■ McCHORD AFB, WASH. Three airmen were retired from the Air Force last week in ceremonies held in the office of Col. T. Alan Bennett, Commanding Officer of the 325th Fighter-All Weather Wing. M/Sgt. Sebastian Carta, M/Sgt. James A. Dukes, and T/Sgt. Trevor Myer were retired after they had served an average of over 30 years.

M/Sgt. Carta and T/Sgt. Myer make their homes in nearby Tacoma and plan to continue their association with the Air Force by obtaining work here at McChord. M/Sgt. Dukes intends to return to his home in Phenix City, Ala., and may continue a career as a supply technician along with fishing, hunting, and "taking it easy."

■ CHERRY POINT, N. C. A Helicopter Transport squadron has joined the ranks of the Second Marine Air Wing here. The squadron, called HMR-261, is the second unit of its kind in the Marine Corps and the first to be stationed here at the world's largest Marine Corps Air Station.

Lt. Col. O. A. Chambers is commanding officer and Maj. Matt S. Ober, Jr., executive officer of the "copter" squadron. Operations will begin shortly after 1 May when 15 HRS-1 copters will be delivered from the factory to the Marine Corps Air Station and 35 pilots report from Quantico, Va. and Pensacola, Fla.

The new HRS-1 helicopters are capable of transporting ten combat Marines or eight litter patients, plus two pilots.

■ CASTLE AFB, CALIF. Col. David Wade, deputy wing commander, has said farewell to friends here and is headed for a new temporary assignment with the Far Eastern Air Forces. He will proceed immediately to his temporary assignment in the Far East, but his permanent assignment will be with the 98th Bomb Wing, Fairchild AFB, Bong, Wash.

Colonel Wade came to this Strategic Air Command Superfort base in July 1950, from Brooks AFB, Tex. and shortly thereafter was appointed acting base commander in the absence of Brig. Gen. Robert H. Terrill, then commanding the 93d Bomb Wing on temporary duty in England. Colonel Wade also spent a short period with the advanced echelon in England. He served as both base commander and deputy wing commander, as well as wing executive officer while stationed at this 15th Air Force Station.

■ ANCHORAGE, ALASKA. Lt. Gen. William E. Kepner, USAF, commanding general, Alaskan Command, in an address to a joint session of the Alaska legislature, stated that he hopes the territory's Civil Defense organization will "promote Civil Air Patrol." The legislative group which voted $400,000 for Civil Defense in Alaska heard the USAF general's broad concept of what Civil Air Patrol might do in case of war conditions in that strategic area. As in the last war, General Kepner saw a possible need for CAP in anti-submarine patrol off Alaskan shores. CAP could reconnoiter highway traffic, he said, and patrol against sabotage of pipelines and highlines.

General Kepner's headquarters is at Elmendorf AFB-Fort Richardson, near Anchorage, where also is located the Wing headquarters of Civil Air Patrol in the Territory. Col. Jack R. Carr, CAP, is wing commander and the Air Force-Civil Air Patrol liaison officer is Capt. J. D. Stone.

Armed Services Prayer Book

Nearly a score of the contributors to a new, pocket-sized collection of special prayers for servicemen and women come from the top echelons of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Army Nurses Corps, WACs and WAVES.

Generals of the Army Omar Bradley, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Douglas MacArthur and George C. Marshall; Generals Mark W. Clark and Hoyt S. Vandenberg; Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Marine Corps Commandant General Clifton B. Cates, USCG Commandant Vice Admiral Merlin O'Neill; Col. Mary Phillips, Chief, Army Nurse Corps; Col. Mary A. Hallaren, WAC Director, and Capt. Joy Bright Hancock, Commandant, WAVES, are among more than 100 contributors to "The Armed Services Prayer Book."

The first Oak Leaf Cluster to the Bronze Star has been awarded to Col. Albert J. Glass, Psychiatric Consultant to the Chief Surgeon, Far East Command. Maj. Gen. Edgar Erskine Hume, Surgeon, FEC, made the presentation.

U. S. COAST GUARD

THE world premier of "The Fighting Coast Guard," Republic feature film, will be held at 8:30 p.m. on 25 April at the Warner Theater in Washington, D. C. A distinguished group of military officials are expected to be guests of the film company and Vice Adm. Merlin O'Neill, USCG Commandant.

The U. S. Coast Guard Academy Band from New London, Conn., and a company of enlisted men from the Cape May, N. J., Training Station will participate.

On display under armed guard in the theater lobby will be the original copy of the first commission ever given by a President of the United States to any officer afloat. This was awarded to an officer of the Revenue Marine Service, from which the present Coast Guard evolved.

Temporary Promotions

Three Coast Guard commanders were promoted to the temporary rank of captain, effective 1 April. They are John R. Stewart, John R. Coiteux and Arthur J. Hesford. On the same date, Arthur N. Colona was promoted to the temporary rank of Chief Machinist and Philip J. Crawley and Frederick M. Rummel were made boatswains.

Colonel Lowe was appointed a Second Lieut- enant, Corps of Engineers, Regular U. S. Army 12 Feb. 1937. During World War II he rose to rank of Colonel. Before the war he was on River and Harbor duty. From 1942 to 1943 he served in the Persian Gulf Command and from 1944 to 1945 was regimental commander of 1315th Engineer General Service Regi- ment, Camp Sutton, N. C. From 1945 to 1947 he served in the Pacific area and after re- turning to U. S. was a graduate student at the University of Illinois where he received his MS degree. From 1948-1949 he was sta- tioned on engineer duty in Buffalo, N. Y. From 1949 to the present he has been as- signed in Washington, D. C. His last assign- ment was in the Office of Military Assistance, Office of the Secretary of Defense. He par- ticipated in the Mutual Defense Assistance survey of Southeast Asia in 1950 and was highly commended by the Department of State as well as by his military superiors.

Colonel Lowe was a sincere, quiet, effective and efficient officer. He was a loyal friend and loved and respected by everyone. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Winona Lowe.

Rear Adm. Augustin T. Beaugard, USN-Ret.

Rear Adm. Augustin Toutant Beaugard, 65, USN-Ret., died 8 April in Jack- sonville, Fla. Burial was in the Arling- ton National Cemetery on 11 April. He was a grand-nephew of General P. G. T. Beaugard of Civil War fame.

A graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy, Class of 1907, Admiral Beaugard served in Washington several times during his career. He was one of the four midshipmen who served as aide to the Grand Marshal at the inauguration of Theodore Roosevelt. In 1918 through 1920 he was with the Bureau of Nav- igation in Washington as Aide to the Minister of Foreign Affairs of Uruguay and in No- vember 1928 came to Washington as an aide to President-elect Herbert Hoover for a cruise to South America and West Indian ports.

Admiral Beaugard was a member of the first U. S. Naval Mission to Brazil in 1922 and returned to Brazil in 1935 as Chief of the Mission and in 1941 was made Naval Attache remaining in Brazil until 1943 when he was placed on the Retired list due to physical disability. Medals and honors awarded Ad- miral Beaugard consisted of a letter of Com- mendation, Mexican Service Medal, and Vic- tory Medal with a Patrol Clasp from World War I; from World War II, the Legion of Merit, American-Defense Medal, Victory Medal, and American Campaign Medal. For- eign Honors consisted of France Legion of Honor, Rank of Officers; Ecuador, Order of Abdon Calderon; Brazil Order of Southern Cross, Rank of Grand Officer; Brazil Order of Naval Merit, Rank of Commander and two Brazil War Service Medals.

Admiral Beaugard is survived by his wid- ow, Elizabeth Munford Beaugard of 11 Maryland Ave., Annapolis, Md.; a daughter, Mrs. P. F. Bedell; two granddaughters, Joan Elizabeth Bedell and Norvell Ann Bedell and one brother, Richard T. Beaugard. Mrs. P. F. Bedell is the wife of a naval officer on duty at Jacksonville, Fla.

Capt. John E. Rezner, USN-Ret.

Services with full military honors were held 10 April at the Arlington National Cemetery for Capt. John Eugene Rezner, 51, USN-Ret., who died 7 April in New London, Conn.

A graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., Class of 1921, Captain Rezner served in the Submarine service in the At- lantic during the early stages of World War II. He was retired on 1 April 1943.

Survivors include his mother, Mrs. Clara Josephine Rezner of Kirkwood, Ill., his widow, Mrs. Mary Ganey Rezner, 552 Ocean Avenue, New London, and three daughters, Alice Jo, Gay and Joan.

Honorary pallbearers included Rear Adm. H. H. McLean, USN; Capt. H. J. Carpenter, USN; Capt. W. B. Thorp, USN; Capt. W. L. Hoffheins, USN; Capt. A. Bannister, USN and Capt. C. F. Erck, USN. All of the honorary pallbearers, with the exception of Captain Erck are on duty in Washington.

"(d) Commercial enterprises: Several re- ports have been received regarding the im- proper activities of commercial enterprises on posts and stations. Regulations covering this matter are quite explicit. The presence of large groups of men presents a possible sales opportunity which energetic representa- tives of commercial enterprises are not likely to overlook. Every possible precaution must be taken to insure that the Marine Corps is not, even by inference, a party to commercial enterprises except through the medium of post exchanges, and that no such enterprise operate on a Marine Corps post or station except as provided by current regulations.

"10. The Marine Corps has an important job to do in the future. We can well be proud of our past accomplishments, but that record, no matter how bright, will not serve as future justification for the Marine Corps. By our actions now and in the future we must demon- strate that we are worthy of our status as a military service in this Nation's defense structure."

Bigger Planes for Navy

Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air John F. Floberg revealed this week that the Navy has in experimental or developmental stage "bigger, faster and more powerful aircraft."

Speaking before the Junior Chamber of Commerce in Minneapolis, Minn., Assistant Secretary Floberg discussed at some length the evolution of the aircraft carrier in the Navy, with particular emphasis on the newly authorized 60,000-ton carrier on which construction will begin this year.

The bigger planes, he said, "will throw still greater demands on the carriers." He also said that the Navy is learning "many lessons" in the Korean operation which it "can apply to the construction of the new 60,000-ton carrier."

Mr. Floberg pointed out that "many of the factors which led to the evolution and growth of landing fields are directly applicable to the evolution of our carriers." He added, however, that "it is well to keep in mind that the development of carriers is not merely a question of making them larger. Size, in and for itself, is not all-important." He said that "the important thing is to build into our latest ships . . . all the information and intelligence of past and future sea warfare that we possibly can and also to incorporate therein the best judgment on the trend in this field in the years to come. These considerations have made progressively greater space and weight demands."

Jet fighters used by the fleet today "weigh 12 to 15 thousand pounds . . . and land well over one hundred miles per hour," he said.

Mr. Floberg stated that the evolution of aircraft types throws great demands on the carrier, and pointed out that the Navy, in adapting its ships to these facts, is only recognizing that it is dealing with airplanes of the 1950's.

Anti-Submarine Bomber

A new model of the Navy's P2V bomber, developed for anti-submarine warfare, was announced 12 April by the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, Burbank, Calif. President Robert E. Gross reported that first of a substantial number of the new P2V-5 will go to the U. S. Navy this month.

Concurrently, Great Britain and Australia have announced that they also will receive fleets of the P2Vs. Under a policy permitting release of certain key U. S. military equipment to friendly nations, special interest in the P2V also has been indicated by the governments of South Africa, New Zealand, Canada and the Netherlands.

This latest model, the P2V-5, continues the concept of aerial anti-submarine warfare explored and developed by the Navy and Lockheed in the P2V series. P2Vs already are in service patrolling both East and West coasts. Earlier versions have operated from Alaska and Newfoundland bases to the Panama Canal Zone. Assignment of current models includes the Pacific theater, specifically the Korean area of battle.

Their long range permits the aircraft to roam far from shore and, with precise radar and electronic instruments, to intercept enemy intruders while they still are on the high seas.

This newest version of the P2V is distinguished externally from its predecessors by the addition of a nose turret armed with cannon, and by two tip tanks "center mounted" at the extreme end of the wings rather than slung beneath them. The P2V-5 carries appreciably more radar and electronic equipment in addition to its heavy armament than any previous model. Its range, speed and other performance characteristics are substantially the same as earlier types.

The Air Force now operates more than 75 hospitals.

New Board Vice Chairman

Munitions Board Chairman John D. Small this week named William J. McBrien, Illinois industrialist, as Vice Chairman in charge of procurement and supply activities. He will serve without compensation.

Mr. McBrien is Vice President of the Caterpillar Tractor Co. of East Peoria, Ill. During World War I, he served in the Infantry.

In 1918, Mr. McBrien went with the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and a decade later joined the Caterpillar Company as Credit Manager. In 1938, he was elected Treasurer and in 1944 Vice President of the tractor company.

He is a member of the National Association of Manufacturers, the National Credit Men's Association and the National Small Business Men's Association.

Visit Industrial Centers

Ten major industrial centers in the United States will be visited by the faculty and student body of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces from 16 to 20 April, the Department of Defense announced yesterday.

Each of ten groups from the College will visit a different area to observe activities of major significance in industrial mobilization. These field trips are scheduled annually as part of the school curriculum and have no connection with current or planned procurement activities of the armed forces.

Through the cooperation of industrial concerns, visits will include discussions with officials concerning problems of joint interest to industry and the armed forces, inspection of industrial facilities and observation of plant operations. The industrial plants visited are among those currently under study or of particular significance in industrial mobilization.

Groups will visit the following plants.

Pittsburgh Area: Pittsburgh Coke and Chemical Company, Neville Island; Mine Safety Appliance Company; Aluminum Company of America, New Kensington; National Electric Products Corporation, Ambridge; National Tube Company, McKeesport, and United States Steel Company.

Philadelphia Area: SKF Industries; Lukens Steel Company, Coatsville; Radio Corporation of America, Victor Division, Camden, N. J.; Budd Company; Autocar Company, Ardmore.

Houston-Dallas Area: Sheffield Steel Company; Humble Oil Company, Bay Town; General Tire and Rubber Company; tour of Port of Houston; Hughes Tool Company; Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corporation, Ft. Worth; Chance Vought Aircraft Division, United Aircraft Corporation; Ford Motor Company.

The Industrial College of the Armed Forces, of which Maj. Gen. A. W. Vannaman, USAF, is Commandant, has the mission of preparing selected regular officers of the armed services for important command, staff, and planning assignments in the Department of Defense. It also prepares selected civilians from various government departments for important industrial mobilization planning assignments. Federal departments other than the Department of Defense represented in the student body include the Departments of State, Treasury, Commerce, Labor, and Interior.

WWII Lt. Col. RCA Attorney

Election of Robert L. Werner, a World War II lieutenant colonel, as General Attorney of the Radio Corporation of America is announced by Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, Chairman of the Board of RCA. Mr. Werner succeeds Joseph V. Heffernan, who has been elected Financial Vice President of the National Broadcasting Company, a service of RCA.

Entering the Army as a captain in World War II, Mr. Werner was promoted to lieutenant colonel, serving in the London office of the Signal Corps Legal Agency, and later as an Intelligence Officer under General Carl Spaatz at Headquarters of the U. S. Strategic Air Forces in England, France, Austria and Germany.

Army Vet Joins Timken

Mr. S. T. Salvage, Advertising Manager of the Timken Roller Bearing Co., has announced the appointment of Norman H. Peterson as Assistant Advertising Manager.

After his graduation from the University of Illinois in 1943, Mr. Peterson served three years with the Finance Department of the Army. His World War II service included 14 months in the European Theatre of Operations with the 116th Finance Disbursing Section.

at this headquarters as applying solely to formal public statements and not to communications, correspondence or personal conversations with others.

"5. The General feels that he has complied meticulously with all directives he has received, not only recently, but throughout his entire military service.

"6. The General has interpreted both his statement of 24 March and his letter to Congressman Martin, dispatched from here four days prior thereto, as dealing exclusively with the military situation and within the area of his uncontested authority to speak. The one bore no slightest relationship to the other.

"7. The reference to arms for reserve elements of the Republic of Korea was taken from a top secret message of early January while the Army's retrograde movement from Seoul was in progress and conditions indicated the possibility of evacuation. Subsequently, when our initiative had been resumed, General MacArthur, within his capability to arm, authorized a 25 per cent increase in each Republic of Korea division, the increase to be in infantry riflemen. It was obviously quite beyond the capability of this theater to arm and equip 500,000 more Koreans. Their utilization, therefore, became a matter of political policy under the global Military Assistance program."

Gen. Van Fleet to 8th Army

The new commanding general of the Eighth Army, Lt. Gen. James Alvard Van Fleet, USA, 59 years old and a 1915 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, brings to Korea an enviable combat record during two wars.

He has been wounded in action three times. It was his regiment which was selected to spearhead the landing of the 4th Infantry Division at Utah Beach on D-Day in Normandy.

(Of coincident interest is the announcement this week that the 4th Infantry Division, now at Ft. Benning, Ga., where it also was in September 1939 when General Van Fleet assumed command of the 29th Infantry Regiment and later the 8th Infantry Regiment, will be sent to Europe to bolster General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower's command. During World War II, General Van Fleet commanded the 4th Infantry Division in September 1944).

During a seven month period, from June 1944 when he landed on Utah Beach to January 1945 when he was given command of all field force units in the United Kingdom, General Van Fleet was advanced from regimental commander to corps commander.

Chronologically, here are the highlights of his distinguished military career.

His first assignment following graduation from the Military Academy was at Madison Barracks, N. Y. Shortly afterward he was transferred to Eagle Pass, Tex., and in October 1917 became an instructor for the Provisional Officers Classes at Ft. Leavenworth, Kans. The following April he joined the 16th Machine Gun Battalion of the 6th Division at Camp Forrest, Tenn., and later moved with it to Camp Wadsworth, S. C.

In July 1918 he went to France with the 6th Division and shortly afterward assumed command of the 17th Machine Gun Battalion, with which he saw action in the Gerardmer Sector and the Meuse-Argonne Offensive. While serving in command of the 17th Battalion, he was wounded in action on 4 Nov. 1918, near Sedan. After the Armistice, he remained on occupation duty with his battalion until its return to the United States in June 1919.

After a year with the 6th Division at Camp Grant, Ill., he was assigned to the ROTC at Kansas State Agricultural College, Manhattan. In January 1921 he became professor of Military Science and Tactics at the South Dakota State College, and in September 1921 was assigned the same duty at the University of Florida. While at the University of Florida he became head coach of the football team, in addition to being Commandant of Cadets.

After more than two years spent in extensive maneuvers in the Panama Canal Zone he returned to the United States to become an instructor at the Infantry School at Ft. Benning, Ga. In 1928 he entered the advanced course at the Infantry School, from which he was graduated in June 1929. He then returned to his duties as an instructor there and in 1933 was assigned to the Fifth Infantry Regiment at Ft. Williams, Me. Two years later he became an instructor with the Organized Reserves at San Diego, Calif.

In September 1939 he returned to Ft. Benning to become a battalion commander of the 29th Infantry Regiment, and in June 1941 assumed command of the 8th Infantry Regiment, 4th Infantry Division, at Ft. Benning. He commanded this unit the following three years, conducting rigorous combat training, amphibious exercises and maneuvers at Ft. Benning, Camp Gordon, Ft. Dix, N. J.; Camp Gordon Johnson, Fla., and many other stations in this country before moving it to the European Theater in January, 1944.

The amphibious training exercises were continued in England, and his regiment was selected to spearhead the landing of the 4th Infantry Division at Utah Beach on D-Day. After fierce combat from the beach to Cherbourg, he was assigned as assistant commander of the Second Infantry Division, with which he took part in the operations at St. Lo and in the capture of the Port of Brest. After the fall, he was further transferred and commanded, in turn, the 4th Infantry Division in the Siegfried Line in late September, and the 90th Infantry Division from October 1944 to February 1945.

The 90th Infantry Division spearheaded the Third Army's attack to cut off the Fortress Metz, crossing both the Moselle and Saar Rivers under extremely difficult conditions. Early in January, it was moved to the Bastogne Area, where it spearheaded the Third Army's final counter-offensive against the Ardennes Bulge. General Van Fleet then was sent to England to command the XXIII Corps which had under it all the field force units then in the United Kingdom.

On 17 March 1945, he was placed in command of the III Corps at the Remagen Bridgehead. Under his leadership, the bridgehead was rapidly expanded. On 26 March the III Corps spearheaded the First Army's advance deep into Germany and thence north to make possible the encirclement of the Ruhr pocket. Under his direction, the III Corps attacked the east face of this pocket, and by 16 April had taken its assigned objectives and 105,000

Army Navy Air Force Journal 919

German prisoners. The III Corps was reassigned to the Third Army on 17 April, and during the last two weeks of the war advanced rapidly across southeast Germany to the foot of the Austrian Alps.

With the cessation of hostilities in Europe, General Van Fleet with his battle-tested III Corps headquarters, was deployed in June, 1945, for the Pacific through the United States. With the arrival of V-J Day, the organization remained at Camp Polk, La., where General Van Fleet remained in command until February 1946.

He then was assigned to command the Second Service Command, with headquarters at Governors Island, N. Y. On 7 June 1946, following a reorganization of the Zone of Interior into six Army Areas, General Van Fleet was appointed deputy commanding general of the First Army at Governors Island.

In December 1947 he was assigned to headquarters of the European Command at Frankfurt, Germany, and two months later was transferred to the U. S. Army Group, American Mission for Aid to Greece, with station at Athens. On 19 Feb. 1948 he became director of the Joint U. S. Military Advisory and Planning Group in Greece, whose function was to provide operational advice to the Greek military establishment down to and including divisional level.

He returned to the United States in August 1950 to assume command of the Second Army at Ft. George G. Meade, Md.

Promotions

He was promoted to first lieutenant (permt) on 1 July 1916; to captain (permt) on 15 May 1917; to major (temp) on 17 June 1918.
